4. Learned senior counsel for the petitioner has submitted that respondent no.2 does not by any means falls within the definition of 'workman, and the issue concerned to the status of the employee which ought to have been considered by the respondent No.1 prior to making the reference, and thus urged for setting aside the impugned orders, as stated above.

5. Mr. Sarma, learned Addl. GA has vehemently opposed the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner. He has submitted that the writ petition requires to be dismissed as there is no infirmity in the order passed by the Commissioner.

6. This court has perused the record and also has gone through the impugned Orders. While passing the impugned Orders, the respondent no. 1 has not framed any issue on the point of maintainability of the case and also did not determine as to whether the respondent no. 2 falls within the ambit of 'workmen' under the statute. Unless the crucial issues are framed, the respondent no. 1 cannot proceed further, which in this case, the respondent no. 1, remained silent.

7. Accordingly, the impugned Orders dated 31.03.2022 and 01.04.2022 are set-aside, and the matter is remanded back to the respondent no. 1. The respondent no.1 shall frame an issue on the point of maintainability as well as whether the respondent no.2 falls under the definition of 'workmen' under the statute and thereafter shall frame reasonable issues and proceed with the matter. The petitioners and the respondent no.2 are at liberty to submit their draft issues, in the event, if they are advised to do so. On receipt of the same, the respondent No.1-Commissioner shall examine the matter in its entirety including on the point of maintainability and then proceed with the same.
