CoramHon'ble Mr Justice Rakesh Kainthla, Judge.Whether approved for reporting?¹ No.For the Petitioner : M/s J.K.Verma and Mayank
Verma, Advocates.*For the Respondent/State : Mr Ajit Sharma, Deputy Advocate General.

Rakesh Kainthla, Judge

The petitioner has filed the present petition seeking regular bail in F.I.R. no. 53 of 2026, dated 02.03.2026, registered at Police Station Sundernagar, District Mandi, H.P., for the commission of offences punishable under Sections 21, 25 and 29 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act.

2 It has been asserted that as per the prosecution, the police party was checking the traffic on 02.03.2026. They stopped a vehicle bearing registration no. HP 31-9134 at about 01:30 p.m. The petitioner Surender Kumar was driving the vehicle, and co-accused Rinku was occupying the front seat. The police became suspicious of the conduct of the occupants. They called Rajesh Kumar, who came to the spot with another person. The police checked the vehicle and recovered one black polythene packet from the back pocket of the driver's seat cover. The police checked the packet and found 134 grams of heroin in it. The police arrested the occupants and seized the heroin. The allegations against the petitioner are false. The petitioner's mere presence in the vehicle or his driving the vehicle does not lead to an inference that he was in possession of the heroin. The FIR was registered on 02.03.2026. More than 6 months have elapsed since the registration of the FIR. The trial has not yet started. The police have filed the charge sheet before the Court, and no fruitful purpose would be served by detaining the petitioner in custody. The petitioner would abide by the terms and conditions that the Court may impose. Hence, it was prayed that the present petition be allowed and the petitioner be released on bail.

3. The petition is opposed by filing a status report asserting that the police were checking the vehicles on

02.03.2026, at Alsu. A car bearing registration No. HP-31-9134, came from Bilaspur, at about 01:30 p.m. The police stopped the car and asked the driver to produce the documents. The driver and the person sitting beside the driver got frightened and objected to the demand of the police. The police became suspicious and called Rajesh Kumar, who reached the spot after some time with Saroj Kumar. The police checked the car in their presence and recovered one polythene packet containing 134 grams of heroin. The driver identified himself as Surender Kumar, the present petitioner and the person sitting beside the driver identified himself as Rinku. The police seized the heroin and arrested the petitioner and the co-accused. The samples were taken and one sample was sent to FSL, and as per the result of analysis, it was found to be a sample of diacetylmorphine. Five FIRs have been registered against the petitioner, the details of which are as under:-

1.	F.I.R. No. 190 of 2022, dated 09.09.2022, registered at Police Station Sundernagar, for the commission of an offence punishable under Section 21 of the NDPS Act.
2.	F.I.R. No. 27 of 2024, dated 18.01.2024, registered at Police Station Sundernagar, for the commission of offences punishable under Sections 21 and 29 of the NDPS Act.

3.	F.I.R. No. 110 of 2024, dated 21.04.2024, registered at Police Station Sundarnagar, for the commission of offences punishable under Sections 21 and 29 of the NDPS Act.
4.	F.I.R. No. 179 of 2024, dated 14.07.2024, registered at Police Station Sundarnagar, for the commission of offences punishable under Sections 21, 27 and 29 of the NDPS Act.
	F.I.R. No. 91 of 2025, dated 07.05.2025, registered at Police Station Sundarnagar, for the commission of offences punishable under Sections 21 and 29 of the NDPS Act.

4. The police have completed the investigation and filed the charge sheet before the Court. The matter is listed before the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Sundarnagar, District Mandi, H.P. on 29.09.2026. The petitioner would indulge in the commission of a similar crime in case of his release on bail. Hence, it was prayed that the present petition be dismissed.

5. I have heard M/s J.K. Varma and Mayank Varma, learned counsel for the petitioner and Mr Ajit Sharma, learned Deputy Advocate General for the respondent/State.

6. Mr J.K. Varma, learned counsel for the petitioner, submitted that mere presence in the vehicle is not sufficient to connect the petitioner to the commission of the crime. The quantity of heroin stated to have been found in the car is less than the commercial quantity, and rigours of Section 37 of the NDPS Act do not apply to the present case; hence, the petitioner is entitled to bail as a matter of right. The police have completed the investigation and filed the charge sheet before the Court. The petitioner's custodial interrogation is not required. Mere pendency of criminal cases is no reason to deny bail to a person. Therefore, he prayed that the present petition be allowed and the petitioner be released on bail. He relied upon Gurdeep Singh vs. State of H.P. bearing Cr.MP(M) No. 127 of 2023, decided on 23.01.2023 in support of his submissions.

7. Mr Ajit Sharma, learned Deputy Advocate General, for the respondent/State, submitted that the petitioner was found driving the car from which the police had recovered 134 grams of heroin, which is a huge quantity and could not have been meant for self-consumption. The consumption of heroin is adversely affecting society, and no leniency should be shown to the petitioner. The petitioner has criminal antecedents, and he would indulge in the commission of a similar offence in case of his release on bail. Hence, he prayed that the present petition be dismissed.

8 I have given considerable thought to the submissions made at the bar and have gone through the records carefully.

9. The parameters for granting bail were considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Pinki v. State of U.P., (2025) 7 SCC 314: 2025 SCC OnLine SC 781, wherein it was observed at page 380:

(i) Broad principles for the grant of bail

56. In Gudikantis Narasimhulu v. High Court of A.P., (1978) 1 SCC 240: 1978 SCC (Cri) 115, Krishna Iyer, J., while elaborating on the content of Article 21 of the Constitution of India in the context of personal liberty of a person under trial, has laid down the key factors that should be considered while granting bail, which are extracted as under: (SCC p. 244, paras 7-9)

“7. It is thus obvious that the nature of the charge is the vital factor, and the nature of the evidence is also pertinent. The punishment to which the party may be liable, if convicted or a conviction is confirmed, also bears upon the issue.

8. Another relevant factor is whether the course of justice would be thwarted by him who seeks the benignant jurisdiction of the Court to be freed for the time being. [Patrick Devlin, “The Criminal Prosecution in England” (Oxford University Press, London 1960) p. 75 — Modern Law Review, Vol. 81, Jan. 1968, p. 54.]

9. Thus, the legal principles and practice validate the Court considering the likelihood of the applicant interfering with witnesses for the prosecution or otherwise polluting the process of justice. It is not only traditional but rational, in this context, to enquire into the antecedents of a man who is applying for bail to find whether he has a bad record, particularly a record which suggests that he is likely to commit serious offences while on bail. In regard to habituals, it is part of criminological history that a thoughtless bail order has enabled the bailee to exploit the opportunity to inflict further crimes on the members of society. Bail discretion, based on evidence about the criminal record of a defendant, is therefore not an exercise in irrelevance.” (emphasis supplied)

57. In Prahlad Singh Bhati v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2001) 4 SCC 280: 2001 SCC (Cri) 674, this Court highlighted various aspects that the courts should keep in mind while dealing with an application seeking bail. The same may be extracted as follows: (SCC pp. 284–85, para 8)

“8. The jurisdiction to grant bail has to be exercised on the basis of well-settled principles, having regard to the circumstances of each case and not in an arbitrary manner. While granting bail, the court has to keep in mind the nature of accusations, the nature of evidence in support thereof, the severity of the punishment which conviction will entail, the character, behaviour, means and standing of the accused, circumstances which are peculiar to the accused, reasonable possibility of securing the presence of the accused at the trial, reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with, the larger interests of the public or State and similar other considerations. It has also to be kept in mind that for the purposes of granting the bail the legislature has used the words “reasonable grounds for believing” instead of “the evidence” which means the court dealing with the grant of bail can only satisfy it (sic itself) as to whether there is a genuine case against the accused and that the prosecution will be able to produce prima facie evidence in support of the charge.” (emphasis supplied)

58. This Court in Ram Govind Upadhyay v. Sudarshan Singh, (2002) 3 SCC 598: 2002 SCC (Cri) 688, speaking through Banerjee, J., emphasised that a court exercising discretion in matters of bail has to undertake the same judiciously. In highlighting that bail should not be granted as a matter of course, bereft of cogent reasoning, this Court observed as follows: (SCC p. 602, para 3)

“3. Grant of bail, though being a discretionary order, but, however, calls for the exercise of such a discretion in a judicious manner and not as a matter of course. An order for bail bereft of any cogent reason cannot be sustained. Needless to record, however, that the grant of bail is dependent upon the contextual facts of the matter being dealt with by the court and facts do always vary from case to case. While the placement of the accused in society, though it may be considered by itself, cannot be a guiding factor in the matter of grant of bail, the same should always be coupled with other circumstances warranting the grant of bail. The nature of the offence is one of the basic considerations for the grant of bail — the more heinous is the crime, the greater is the chance of rejection of the bail, though, however, dependent on the factual matrix of the matter.” (emphasis supplied)

59. In Kalyan Chandra Sarkar v. Rajesh Ranjan, (2004) 7 SCC 528: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1977, this Court held that although it is established that a court considering a bail application cannot undertake a detailed examination of evidence and an elaborate discussion on the merits of the case, yet the court is required to indicate the prima facie reasons justifying the grant of bail.

60. In Prasanta Kumar Sarkar v. Ashis Chatterjee, (2010) 14 SCC 496: (2011) 3 SCC (Cri) 765, this Court observed that where a High Court has granted bail mechanically, the said order would suffer from the vice of non-application of mind, rendering it illegal. This Court held as under with regard to the circumstances under which an order granting bail may be set aside. In doing so, the factors which ought to have guided the Court's decision to grant bail have also been detailed as under: (SCC p. 499, para 9)

“9. ... It is trite that this Court does not, normally, interfere with an order passed by the High Court granting or rejecting bail to the accused. However, it is equally incumbent upon the High Court to exercise its discretion judiciously, cautiously and strictly in compliance with the basic principles laid down in a plethora of decisions of this Court on the point. It is well settled that, among other circumstances, the factors to be borne in mind while considering an application for bail are:

- (i) whether there is any prima facie or reasonable ground to believe that the accused had committed the offence;
- (ii) nature and gravity of the accusation;
- (iii) severity of the punishment in the event of conviction;
- (iv) danger of the accused absconding or fleeing, if released on bail;
- (v) character, behaviour, means, position and standing of the accused;
- (vi) likelihood of the offence being repeated;
- (vii) reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being influenced; and
- (viii) danger, of course, of justice being thwarted by grant of bail.” (emphasis supplied)

XXXXXXX

62. One of the judgments of this Court on the aspect of application of mind and requirement of judicious exercise of discretion in arriving at an order granting bail to the accused is Brijmani Devi v. Pappu Kumar, (2022) 4 SCC 497: (2022) 2 SCC (Cri) 170, wherein a three-Judge Bench of this Court, while setting aside an unreasoned and casual order (Pappu Kumar v. State of Bihar, 2021 SCC OnLine Pat 2856 and Pappu Singh v. State of Bihar, 2021 SCC OnLine Pat 2857) of the High Court granting bail to the accused, observed as follows: (Brijmani Devi v. Pappu Kumar, (2022) 4 SCC 497: (2022) 2 SCC (Cri) 170]), SCC p. 511, para 35)

“35. While we are conscious of the fact that liberty of an individual is an invaluable right, at the same time, while considering an application for bail, courts cannot lose sight of the serious nature of the accusations against an accused and the facts that have a bearing in the case, particularly when the accusations may not be false, frivolous or vexatious in nature but are supported by adequate material brought on record to enable a court to arrive at a prima facie conclusion. While considering an application for the grant of bail, a prima facie conclusion must be supported by reasons and must be arrived at after having regard to the vital facts of the case brought on record. Due consideration must be given to facts suggestive of the nature of crime, the criminal antecedents of the accused, if any, and the nature of punishment that would follow a conviction vis-à-vis the offence(s) alleged against an accused.” (emphasis supplied)

10. Hon’ble Supreme Court held in State of Rajasthan v. Balchand, (1977) 4 SCC 308: 1977 SCC (Cri) 594: 1977 SCC OnLine SC 261 that the normal rule is bail and not jail, except where the gravity of the crime or the heinousness of the offence suggests otherwise. It was observed at page 308:

2. The basic rule may perhaps be tersely put as bail, not jail, except where there are circumstances suggestive of fleeing from justice or thwarting the course of justice or creating other troubles in the shape of repeating offences or intimidating witnesses and the like, by the petitioner who seeks enlargement on bail from the Court. We do not intend to be exhaustive but only illustrative.

3. It is true that the gravity of the offence involved is likely to induce the petitioner to avoid the course of justice and must weigh with us when considering the question of jail. So also, the heinousness of the crime....”

11. The present petition has to be decided as per the parameters laid down by the Hon’ble Supreme Court.

12. The status report mentions that the petitioner was driving the car from which the police had recovered 134 grams of heroin. It was laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Madan Lal versus State of H.P. (2003) 7 SCC 465; 2003 SCC (Cri) 1664; 2003 SCC OnLineSC 874, that all the occupants of the vehicle would be in conscious possession of the contraband. It was observed:

“19. Whether there was conscious possession has to be determined with reference to the factual backdrop. The facts which can be culled out from the evidence on record are that all the accused persons were travelling in a vehicle, and as noted by the trial court, they were known to each other, and it has not been explained or shown as to how they travelled together from the same destination in a vehicle which was not a public vehicle.

20. Section 20(b) makes possession of contraband articles an offence. Section 20 appears in Chapter IV of the Act, which relates to offences for possession of such articles. It is submitted that to make the possession illicit, there must be conscious possession.

21. It is highlighted that unless the possession was coupled with the requisite mental element, i.e., conscious possession and not mere custody without awareness of the nature of such possession, Section 20 is not attracted.

22. The expression “possession” is a polymorphous term that assumes different colours in different contexts. It may carry different meanings in contextually different backgrounds. It is impossible, as was observed in the Supdt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, W.B. v. Anil Kumar Bhunja [(1979) 4 SCC 274; 1979 SCC (Cri) 1038; AIR 1980 SC 52] to work out a completely logical and precise definition of “possession” uniformly applicable to all situations in the context of all statutes.

23. The word “conscious” means awareness of a particular fact. It is a state of mind which is deliberate or intended.

24. As noted in Gunwantlal v. State of M.P. [(1972) 2 SCC 194; 1972 SCC (Cri) 678; AIR 1972 SC 1756], possession in a given case need not be physical possession but can be constructive, having power and control over the article in the case in question, while the person to whom physical possession is given holds it subject to that power or control.

25. The word “possession” means the legal right to possession (see Heath v. Drown [(1972) 2 All ER 561; 1973 AC 498; (1972) 2 WLR 1306 (HL)]). In an interesting case, it was observed that where a person keeps his firearm in his mother's flat, which is safer than his own home, he must be considered to be in possession of the same. (See Sullivan v. Earl of Caithness [(1976) 1 All ER 844; 1976 QB 966; (1976) 2 WLR 361 (QBD)].)

26. Once possession is established, the person who claims that it was not a conscious possession has to establish it because how he came to be in possession is within his special knowledge. Section 35 of the Act gives a statutory recognition of this position because of the presumption available in law. Similar is the position in terms of Section 54, where a presumption is also available to be drawn from possession of illicit articles.

27. In the factual scenario of the present case, not only possession but conscious possession has been established. It has not been shown by the accused-appellants that the possession was not conscious in the logical background of Sections 35 and 54 of the Act.”

13. Therefore, prima facie, the petitioner was found in possession of the heroin.

14. The Central Government has notified 25 grams as the small quantity of heroin and 250 grams of heroin as the commercial quantity. Thus, the petitioner was found in possession of more than 5 times the small quantity, which is a huge quantity and could not have been meant for self-consumption. There is force in the submission made on behalf of the State that the consumption of the heroin is adversely affecting the society and no leniency should be shown to the petitioner.

15. It was submitted that the quantity of heroin is less than commercial quantity and the rigours of Section 37 of the NDPS Act do not apply to the present case; hence, the petitioner is entitled to bail as a matter of right. This submission is not acceptable. It was laid down by this Court in Khushi Ram Gupta v. State of H.P., 2022 SCC OnLine HP 3779, that the menace of drug addiction has seriously eroded into the fabric of society and the release of an accused on bail in NDPS Act cases will send a negative signal to society. It was observed:

“8. The menace of drug addiction, especially in adolescents and students, has seriously eroded into the fabric of society, putting the future generation as well as the prospects of future nation-building into serious peril.

9. It is not a case where the investigating agency is clueless in respect of evidence against the petitioner. Though allegations against the petitioner are yet to be proved in accordance with the law, it cannot be taken singly as a factor to grant bail to the petitioner. Nothing has been placed on record on behalf of the petitioner to divulge as to how and in what manner he came in contact with the persons who were residents of the State of Himachal Pradesh. Thus, there is sufficient prima facie material to infer the implication of the petitioner in the crime. In such circumstances, the release of the petitioner on bail will send a negative signal in society, which will definitely be detrimental to its interests.

10. The prima facie involvement of the petitioner in the dangerous trade of contraband cannot be ignored merely on account of the fact that he has no past criminal history. It cannot be guaranteed that there will be re-indulgence by the petitioner in similar activities, in case he is released on bail.”

16. Similarly, it was held in Bunty Yadav v. State of H.P., 2022 SCC OnLine HP 4996, that bail cannot be claimed as a matter of right even though the rigours of Section 37 of the NDPS Act do not apply to a case. Each case has to be adjudged on its own facts.

It was observed:

“6. The quantity involved in the case is 89.89 grams of heroin and 3.90 grams of MDMA. Such quantity may not technically fall under the category of commercial quantity; nevertheless, such quantity cannot be termed to be less by any stretch of the imagination. The evident nature of commercial transactions and dealing with the contraband aggravates the situation for the petitioner. In a case where Section 37 of the NDPS Act is not applicable, bail cannot be claimed as a matter of right. The fate depends on the facts of each and every case.

7. The menace of drug addiction, especially in adolescents and students, has seriously eroded the fabric of society, putting the future generation as well as the prospects of future nation-building into serious peril.”

17. It was laid down by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Union of India v. Namdeo Ashruba Nakade, SLP (Crl.) 9792/2025, decided on 07.11.2025, that there is a concerning increase in drug abuse amongst the youth. It was observed: –

8. This Court is of the view that the issue of substance abuse has emerged as a global public health crisis in the twenty-first century, affecting every country worldwide, as drug trafficking and addiction have become pervasive. The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) reported in its 2025 World Drug Report that “As at 2023, some 316 million people worldwide had used drugs in the past year, representing an increase over the past decade that outpaces population growth, which indicates a higher prevalence of drug use.”

9. In India, there has been a concerning increase in drug abuse among the youth. Substance abuse not only affects individuals, families, and communities but also undermines various aspects of health, including physical, social, political, and cultural foundations, and mental well-being. (See: “Bhattacharya S, Menon GS, Garg S, Grover A, Saleem SM, Kushwaha P. The lingering menace of drug abuse among the Indian youth—it’s time for action. Indian J Community Med 2025;50: S9-12, published on 17th April, 2025”)

10. According to many news reports, India faces a clear dilemma between tackling the narcotics crisis systematically or sacrificing its most valuable resource, i.e. its young people. The extent of the menace of drug abuse has also been highlighted by this Court in the case of Ankush Vipin Kapoor v. National Investigation Agency, (2025) 5 SCC 155, wherein this Court has observed as under:

“9.1 The ills of drug abuse seem to be shadowing the length and breadth of our country, with the Central and every State Government fighting against the menace of substance abuse. The debilitating impact of the drug trade and drug abuse is an immediate and serious concern for India. As the globe grapples with the menace of escalating substance use disorders (“SUD”) and an ever-accessible drug market, the consequences leave a generational Page 75 of 84 imprint on public health and even national security. Article 47 of the Constitution makes it a duty of the State to regard the raising of the level of nutrition and the standard of living of its people and the improvement of public health as among its primary duties, and in particular, the State shall endeavour to bring about the prohibition of the consumption except for medicinal purposes of intoxicating drinks and of drugs which are injurious to health. The State has a responsibility to address the root causes of this predicament and develop effective intervention strategies to ensure that India’s younger population, which is particularly vulnerable to substance abuse, is protected and saved from such a menace. This is particularly because substance abuse is linked to social problems and can contribute to child maltreatment, spousal violence, and even property crime in a family.”

18. Hence, the petitioner cannot be released on bail merely because the rigours of Section 37 of the NDPS Act do not apply to his case.

19. The status report shows that five FIRs have been registered against the petitioner for the commission of offences punishable under various provisions of the NDPS Act, which means that the petitioner has criminal antecedents. This Court dealt with the relevance of criminal antecedents while granting bail in Champa vs. State of H.P.: 2025:HHC:28899 and held that the criminal antecedents would disentitle an accused from the concession of bail, especially when the FIR registered against him related to the commission of a similar offence. This judgment was unsuccessfully assailed before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in SLP(Criminal) 19120 of 2025 titled Champa Devi vs. State of H.P., decided on 27.11.2025. This position was reiterated in Shakti Sharma vs. State of H.P. 2026: HHC:33462. Therefore, the relevance of criminal antecedents cannot be ignored.

20. In the present case, the registration of the FIR against the petitioner for the commission of an offence punishable under the NDPS Act shows that the apprehension of the prosecution is justified, that the petitioner would indulge in the commission of a similar offence in case of his release on bail, and the petitioner is not entitled to bail because of his criminal antecedents.

21. It was submitted that the petitioner was arrested on 02.03.2026 and more than 6 months have elapsed. The trial has not commenced, and the petitioner cannot be detained in custody indefinitely. This submission will not help the petitioner. It takes some time to carry out the investigation and preliminary proceedings before the commencement of Trial. Considering the nature of the quantity and its ramifications on society, the period of 6 months cannot be said to be excessive, justifying the grant of bail to the petitioner. Further, the petitioner has not filed the copies of the order sheets to demonstrate that the delay is attributable to the Court or the prosecution and not to him. Hence, the petitioner cannot be released on bail at this stage.

22. In Gurdeep Singh (supra), the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court had granted bail despite the criminal antecedents. It is difficult to follow the judgment of the Co-ordinate Bench in view of the binding precedents of the Hon'ble Supreme Court noticed by this Court in Champa (supra) as affirmed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. Thus, not much advantage can be derived from the cited judgment.

23. No other point was urged.

24. In view of the above, the present petition fails, and it is dismissed. However, this will not prevent the petitioner from approaching the Court if the Trial is not concluded expeditiously.

25. The observations made hereinabove are regarding the disposal of this petition and will have no bearing whatsoever on the merits of the case.

29th September, 2026.
