As per the record all the injuries are simple in nature and some of the penal provisions are though not compoundable but prima-facie from the contents of the FIR the dispute relates to a petty matter and, therefore, this court is of the view that continuation of the proceeding is completely a futile exercise particularly when the respondent/complainant himself do not want to proceed with these trials. 8. Learned A.G.A. submits that the offences punishable under sections 353 and 307 of IPC though are not compoundable but taking into consideration the nature of allegations and injuries with the leave of the court these two penal provisions can also be compounded. 9. After hearing the submission of learned counsel for the parties and taking into consideration that the applicants and the respondent/complainant belongs to the same
