The present Applicant pretended that he is I.B. Officer and he could provide employment to the First Informant in the Ordnance Factory of Varangaon as Store Keeper, however for that the first informant will have to pay Rs.50,000/- initially and Rs.2,50,000/- after job is secured. However, after lapse of considerable period when the first informant could not get any job, he tried to establish the contact on telephone with the present Applicant. That time, present Applicant asked the first informant as to how much amount he has paid; upon that, first informant replied that he has paid Rs.50,000/- to the present Applicant. Upon that, telephone was cutoff and thereafter he avoided the contact with the first informant. That leads suspicion in the mind of the first informant and he approached to the police. That time, it was noticed by the first informant that like him other unemployed youths were already cheated by the present Applicant by alluring them on the pretext of job.
