JUDGMENT

Petitioners, in the above writ petitions, are respectively the University and the student. The University challenges the order of the Human Rights Commission, which directed the University, not to insist for compulsory internship. The student seeks implementation of the order of the Human Rights Commission.

Learned counsel for the University submits that, the student has, later to the filing of the writ petition, completed the internship and has also been issued with a certificate and nothing survives in both the writ petitions. Human Rights Commission's order is, hence, of no avail, since, the same was passed on the basis of the guidelines existing then. Writ petitions would stand closed.

K. Vinod Chandran, Judge.
