1. Counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner states that the matter has been compromised. He states that the possession of the property has been delivered and the keys are also reported to have been handed over to the landlord. In terms of the compromise, the rent already deposited with the court below shall be withdrawn by the landlord and it would constitute a full and final settlement of all claims by one against the other.

2. The civil revision is disposed of as not requiring any further direction with the above observations.
