Kuldip Singh, J. (Oral)

Vide the impugned order dated 27.7.2015 (Annexure P1), the learned Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, SAS Nagar (Mohali) has refused to make correction regarding correct calculations saying that it has become functus officio.

Before the lower Court, an application was filed by the Insurance Company that the compensation amount was calculated Rs.19,85,000/- instead of Rs.17,30,000/- plus interest at the rate of 6% comes to Rs.3,53,507/- and cost at Rs.1080/- and total comes to Rs.20,84,587/-. Opposite counsel had consented to the said correction before the Tribunal.

I am of the view that if some clerical error is there, under Section 152 of CPC, lower Court can always make corrections so as to correct such arithmetical errors. If some calculations are wrongly made, the Tribunal is always at liberty to correct the said clerical error. The revision is accordingly allowed. The learned Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, SAS Nagar (Mohali) is directed to make corrections in the calculations so as to calculate the exact amount.
