RAJIV NARAIN RAINA, J.(Oral)

The only point involved in this appeal arising out of the partition proceedings is that all the co-sharers were not made party before the trial Court. It is well settled that in the absence of co-sharers, partition proceedings are not possible and division of land cannot take place by any of the accepted modes of partition.

The appeal is devoid of merit and consequently, the same is dismissed as not giving rise to any question of law much less a substantial one.
