CORAM: HONOURABLE MR. JUSTICE AJAY KUMAR TRIPATHI

ORAL JUDGMENT

Date: 11-05-2016

Heard counsel for the petitioner and counsel for the respondent authorities.

If the position and the fact is not disputed that husband of the petitioner was dismissed from service in the year 1995 then it is not much she can expect from the respondent authorities by way of a claim because dismissal will amount to forfeiture of benefits like pension and other allowances.

However, the Court is informed that the respondent authority has already made payment to the petitioner with regard to the contributory provident fund deposited by the husband of the petitioner while he was in service and nothing else in terms of benefits is obligatory upon the respondents.

Counsel representing the petitioner does confirm that some payments have accrued.

If that be so, if the petitioner feels that there is some discrepancy in the payment and the accounting, she always can approach the authorities for any clarification with regard to such issue with supporting material.

Writ application stands disposed of in terms of the above.

(Ajay Kumar Tripathi, J)
