K.Kannan, J. (Oral)

In a suit for declaration claiming a right to a fractional share, a third party that claims yet another share, has sought for an impleadment to press for an adjudication in his presence. The court has allowed the application for impleadment. I find no prejudice caused by such an order. On the other hand, it will settle the dispute in relation to the property not merely against the defendant who was originally sued upon but also against a third party who is staking a claim with reference to fractional share. I find no illegality for an intervention in civil revision. Civil revision is dismissed.
