Challenge in the present intra-court appeal is to the order dated 17.5.2016, passed by the learned Single Judge, whereby the application for stay filed by the appellants was dismissed.

The appellants filed the writ petition, in which notice of motion was issued on 6.5.2016 for 26.5.2016. It was during the interregnum that application for stay was filed. The learned Single Judge dismissed the same opining that once the prayer for stay was already there in the writ petition in which notice had already been issued for a short date, there was no emergent situation for entertaining the application in the case.

There is no error in the order passed by the learned Single Judge. Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed.
