ORDER
% 09.05.2016

This is a petition under Section 482 Cr.PC moved by the petitioners for quashing of FIR No.706/2014 registered at Police Station Gazipur, Delhi under Sections 406/498A/34 IPC and consequent proceedings emanating therefrom on the ground that the parties have compromised the matter.

It is submitted by counsel for the petitioners that basically it is a matrimonial dispute. After the marriage owing to differences in temperaments, habits, thoughts and increasing incompatibility, the relationship between the petitioners and the respondent no.2 deteriorated and in order to avoid further deterioration in relationship, the petitioner no.1 and the respondent no.2 started living separately. Efforts and attempts were made by parents and acquaintances to effect reconciliation and for a resumption of the marital relationship but it has not been possible owing to the vital difference in temperament, which had rendered normal married life impracticable and impossible. During the hearing of bail application before learned Additional Sessions Judge, the matter was referred to Mediation Centre, Karkardooma Courts, Delhi and the parties have arrived at an amicable settlement on 06.02.2015 (which is annexed to the petition at pgs. 30 – 34) for a total sum of Rs.4 lacs, out of which Rs.2.50 lacs have already been paid and the balance amount of Rs.1.50 lac has been paid today in the Court in cash. The parties have obtained divorce vide decree of divorce by mutual consent vide order dated 08.02.2016 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Family Court, Vishwas Nagar, Delhi. It is thus prayed that the instant FIR be quashed.

The respondent No.2/complainant, who is present in person (duly identified by the Investigating Officer of the case as well as her counsel) submits that she has amicably resolved all disputes with the petitioners voluntarily without there being any threat, coercion or pressure of any sort. She further submits that she has already received a sum of Rs.2.50 lacs and the balance amount of Rs.1.50 lac has been received by her in cash today in the Court as such she does not want any action against the petitioners and does not have any objection to quashing of the instant FIR.

Mr Arun Kumar Sharma, Addl. Public Prosecutor for the State submits that case is still at the stage of investigation. In view of the settlement arrived at between the parties, he has no objection to quashing of FIR.

Needless to say, offences with which the petitioners are booked are non-compoundable. However in the case of Gian Singh v State of Punjab & Anr. 2012 (9) Scale 257, the three Judges Bench of the Supreme Court dealt with the issue of quashing of FIR in non compoundable offences. Para 57 of the report is extracted hereunder:-

“57. The position that emerges from the above discussion can be summarised thus: the power of the High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from the power given to a criminal court for compounding the offences under Section 320 of the Code. Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation but it has to be exercised in accord with the guideline engrafted in such power viz; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court. In what cases power to quash the criminal proceeding or complaint or F.I.R may be exercised where the offender and victim have settled their dispute would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no category can be prescribed. However, before exercise of such power, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. cannot be fittingly quashed even though the victim or victim’s family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have serious impact on society. Similarly, any compromise between the victim and offender in relation to the offences under special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity etc; cannot provide for any basis for quashing criminal proceedings involving such offences. But the criminal cases having overwhelmingly and pre-dominantly civil flavour stand on different footing for the purposes of quashing, particularly the offences arising from commercial, financial, mercantile, civil, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony relating to dowry, etc. or the family disputes where the wrong is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have resolved their entire dispute. In this category of cases, High Court may quash criminal proceedings if in its view, because of the compromise between the offender and victim, the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal case would put accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal case despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. In other words, the High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to the interest of justice to continue with the criminal proceeding or continuation of the criminal proceeding would tantamount to abuse of process of law despite settlement and compromise between the victim and wrongdoer and whether to secure the ends of justice, it is appropriate that criminal case is put to an end and if the answer to the above question(s) is in affirmative, the High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceeding.”

In view of the same, since it is a matrimonial dispute which the parties have amicably resolved, continuation of the criminal proceedings would be a futile exercise and it will be rather in the ends of justice to give quietus to such litigation.

Accordingly, the petition is allowed and the FIR No.706/2014 registered at Police Station Gazipur, Delhi under Sections 406/498A/34 IPC and consequent proceedings emanating therefrom are hereby quashed.

The petition stands disposed of accordingly.

A copy of this order be given dasti to counsel for the petitioners.
