RAJ MOHAN SINGH, J.

CRM-10459 of 2017

For the reasons mentioned in the application, the same is allowed. Accompanying document (Annexure P-1) Colly is taken on record.

Main case

[1]. The present petition was filed against the judgment dated 19.01.2017 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Sirsa whereby order of sentence passed by the trial Court was modified thereby reducing the same for a period of two years under Section 326/34 IPC while maintaining the sentence under Section 323/34 IPC and as regards the fine also.

[2]. Brief facts are that the trial Court convicted the petitioners for the offence under Sections 323, 326 read with Section 34 IPC and sentenced them to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of three years and to pay fine of Rs.1,000/- each under Section 326/34 IPC and to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year and to pay fine of Rs.1,000/- each under Section 323/34 IPC.

[3]. The lower Appellate Court reduced the sentence in the manner as stated in the preceding para.

[4]. Petitioners filed the present petition on merits. However, during pendency of the petition, a compromise was effected between the parties on 09.02.2017 which has been placed on record as Annexure P-1.

[5]. As per the terms and conditions of the compromise (Annexure P-1), complainant-Harbans Singh stated that the FIR was got registered by him against the accused and he was only the injured person in the occurrence. There was no other injured. Accused Anoop Singh @ Kaka and Boota Singh are the sons of his real uncle and they belong to one family. In order to maintain peace and harmony the compromise was effected. After effecting the aforesaid compromise, no dispute remained between them. Both the parties have joint land and due to the cases pending between them there were some differences and, therefore, by the dint of aforesaid compromise everything has been settled for maintaining public harmony and tranquility. Complainant Harbans Singh accepted the compromise in the presence of the respectables and executed the affidavit as token of confirmation as well. The compromise was signed and attested by the Notary Public.

[6]. Learned counsel for respondent No.2/complainant admitted the factum of aforesaid compromise effected between the parties.

[7]. As per details of Custody certificates filed by learned State counsel, the petitioner Anoop Singh @ Kaka has already undergone 2 months 11 days of actual sentence as on 29.03.2017. Similarly petitioner(s) Boota Singh and Lakhvir Singh @ Lakha have also undergone the similar period of custody.

[8]. The extent and sweep of inherent powers of the High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C., for quashing criminal prosecution on merits as well as on the basis of compromise between the accused and the victim remained question of interpretation since long. The Hon'ble Apex Court after due consideration of judgments in Madhu Limaye vs. State of

Maharashtra, AIR 1978 Supreme Court 47; Bhajan Lal vs. State of Haryana and others, AIR 1992 Supreme Court 604 and State of Karnataka vs. L. Muniswamy and others, AIR 1977 Supreme Court 1489, has summed up the controversy in State through Special Cell, New Delhi vs. Navjot Sandhu @ Afshan Guru and others, 2003(2) RCR (Crl.) 860 (SC). The legal position summed up in the said judgment is in the following manner:-

“Thus, the law is that Article 227 of the Constitution of India gives the High Court the power of superintendence over all courts and tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction. This jurisdiction cannot be limited or fettered by any Act of the State Legislature. The supervisory jurisdiction extends to keeping the subordinate tribunals within the limits of their authority and to seeing that they obey the law. The powers under Article 227 are wide and can be used, to meet the ends of justice. They can be used to interfere even with an interlocutory order. However, the power under Article 227 is a discretionary power and it is difficult to attribute to an order of the High Court, such a source of power, when the High Court itself does not in terms purport to exercise any such discretionary power. It is settled law that this power of judicial superintendence, under Article 227, must be exercised sparingly and only to keep subordinate courts and tribunals within the bound of their authority and not to correct mere errors. Further, where the statute bans the exercise of revisional powers it would require very exceptional circumstances to warrant interference under

Article 227 of the Constitution of India since the power of superintendence was not meant to circumvent statutory law. It is settled law that the jurisdiction under Article 227 could not be exercised "as the cloak of an appeal in disguise. Section 482 of the Criminal Procedure Code starts with the words "Nothing in this Code". Thus the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court under Section 482 of the Criminal Procedure Code can be exercised even when there is a bar under Section 397 or some other provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code. However, as is set out in Satya Narayan Sharma's case (supra) this power cannot be exercised if there is a statutory bar in some other enactment. If the order assailed is purely of an interlocutory character, which could be corrected in exercise of revisional powers or appellate powers the High Court must refuse to exercise its inherent power. The inherent power is to be used only in cases where there is an abuse of the process of the Court or where interference is absolutely necessary for securing the ends of justice. The inherent power must be exercised very sparingly as cases which require interference would be few and far between. The most common case where inherent jurisdiction is generally exercised is where criminal proceedings are required to be quashed because they are initiated illegally, vexatiously or without jurisdiction. Most of the cases set out herein above fall in this category. It must be remembered that the inherent power is not to be resorted to if there is a specific provision in the Code or any other enactment for redress of the grievance of the aggrieved party. This power should not be exercised against an express bar of law engrafted in any other provision of the Criminal Procedure Code. This power cannot be exercised as against an express bar in some other enactment."

[9]. Full Bench of this Court in Kulwinder Singh and others vs. State of Punjab and another, 2007(3) RCR (Crl.) 1052 considered the scope of powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C., to hold that High Court has powers to quash prosecution in order to achieve ends of justice and to prevent abuse of process of law. These powers are not limited to matrimonial dispute alone, rather these powers are unlimited. However these powers are to be exercised very sparingly and with utmost care and caution. There is no statutory bar which can affect the inherent powers of High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. The powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C., is to be exercised Ex-Debitia, justitia to prevent abuse of process of Court.

[10]. In exercise of inherent powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C., criminal proceedings are not to be quashed where the offence is heinous in nature. Proceedings can only be quashed where the issue is overwhelmingly and predominantly of civil profile arising out of commercial, financial, mercantile and civil or matrimonial nature. In a way dispute may involve wrong which is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have redressed the same by entering into compromise.

[11]. In Gian Singh vs. State of Punjab and another 2012(4) RCR (Crl.) 543, the Hon'ble Supreme Court considered necessary imports of all previous precedents and observed in the following manner:-

“57. The position that emerges from the above discussion can be summarised thus: the power of the High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from the power given to a criminal court for compounding the offences under Section 320 of the Code. Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation but it has to be exercised in accord with the guideline engrafted in such power viz; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court. In what cases power to quash the criminal proceeding or complaint or F.I.R may be exercised where the offender and victim have settled their dispute would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no category can be prescribed. However, before exercise of such power, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. cannot be fittingly quashed even though the victim or victim’s family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have serious impact on society. Similarly, any compromise between the victim and offender in relation to the offences under special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity etc; cannot provide for any basis for quashing criminal proceedings involving such offences. But the criminal cases having overwhelmingly and pre-dominantly civil flavour stand on different footing for the purposes of quashing, particularly the offences arising from commercial, financial, mercantile, civil, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony relating to dowry, etc. or the family disputes where the wrong is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have resolved their entire dispute. In this category of cases, High Court may quash criminal proceedings if in its view, because of the compromise between the offender and victim, the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal case would put accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal case despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. In other words, the High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to the interest of justice to continue with the criminal proceeding or continuation of the criminal proceeding would tantamount to abuse of process of law despite settlement and compromise between the victim and wrongdoer and whether to secure the ends of justice, it is appropriate that criminal case is put to an end and if the answer to the above question(s) is in affirmative, the High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceeding.”

[12]. In Gian Singh's case (supra) the compounding of offence in terms of Section 320 Cr.P.C. has been held to be maintainable before the revisional Court. The revisional Court is also competent to allow the parties to compound the offence. The consequence of such composition would be an acquittal of the accused. Section 320 Cr.P.C. mandates that no offence shall be compounded except as provided by this Section. Obviously in view thereof, the composition of an offence has to be in accordance with Section 320 Cr.P.C. and in no other manner.

[13]. In view of ratio laid down in Gian Singh's case (supra), I deem it to be a fit case, where indulgence of this Court in its inherent jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C., can be granted for allowing the parties to live in peace and maintain harmony between them so as to safeguard their future interests in a congenial atmosphere of living. The compromise in question would go in a long way to strengthen the bonding between the parties, who are members of the same family and would also go in a long way to help them to maintain public tranquility in the area.

[14]. In view of above, impugned judgment and order of sentence dated 09.06.2014/10.6.2014 and judgment dated 19.01.2017 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Sirsa are hereby quashed.

[15]. Petition is allowed in the aforesaid terms.
