It is the submission of the learned counsel representing the petitioner that because of inter caste marriage solemnized by the petitioner and his wife, namely, Smriti, daughter of Ashok Kumar Singh, the family of his wife are threatening them of dire consequences, they are afraid of their life and despite having informed the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Saran at Chapra, with regard to their apprehensions, no step has been taken to provide them adequate security.

Learned counsel for the State is present and submits that in the facts and circumstances pleaded by the petitioner, the Superintendent of Police, Saran at Chapra, may be the competent person to take note of this and do the needful in order to protect the life of the petitioner and his wife.

Learned counsel for the respondent no. 7 is present who has not filed his Vakalatnama as yet.

Having considered the rival submissions at the bar, this Court directs the Superintendent of Police, Saran at Chapra, as also the Officer-in-Charge, Chapra Town Police Station, District-Saran, to take note of the complaint of the petitioner immediately and find out the correct position as to their apprehension and in case it is found that the apprehension is based on certain reasonable believes and the circumstances showing such threats to the life of this petitioner and his wife exist, the authorities concerned shall be obliged to take all such steps which may be required to protect their life and ensure that they are able to discharge their duties in the school without any fear.
