AMOL RATTAN SINGH, J.(ORAL)

Pursuant to the notice issued, learned State counsel has produced in Court the custody certificate of the appellant, showing that out of the 6 month sentence imposed upon her after her conviction for the commission of an offence punishable under Section 15 of the NDPS Act, she having been convicted for possession of 20 kgs. of poppy husk, she has undergone 3 months and 14 days of actual custody.

Though there is stated to be another criminal case registered against her for an offence punishable under Section 22 of the NDPS Act, with that case still under consideration of the trial Court, the present offence arising out of the FIR in question being the first offence of the appellant, with it still to be seen whether she would be convicted or acquitted in the other case, I consider it appropriate to reduce her sentence to the term of imprisonment already undergone by her, subject to her paying the fine of Consequently upon payment of the fine of Rs.1000/-, the appellant would be released from custody forthwith.

Appeal disposed of.
