No recovery is stated to have been made from the petitioner in this case, as is not denied on query by learned State counsel (who says so on instructions). Therefore, he also having been in custody for the past 2 ½ years, though there is stated to be another criminal case registered against him in the NDPS Act, 1985, in the present case, his period of custody being sufficiently long already, with the trial nowhere near conclusion, the petition is allowed and the petitioner is ordered to be admitted to bail, upon his furnishing adequate bail and surety bonds to the satisfaction of the trial Court.
