In the considered opinion of this Court, review applications cannot be entertained on the following grounds:-

(i) review application has been filed by a new counsel; (ii) it has been specifically recorded by this Court that counsel at the time of arguments was specifically called upon to point out evidence available on the record to substantiate his case. However, learned counsel was unable to point out any evidence. Now by way of the present application, certain new evidence is sought to be produced on file by moving an application under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

In the considered opinion of this Court, while entertaining review application, new documents cannot be taken into consideration.

In view of the aforesaid, review applications are dismissed.
