Crl. M.A. No. 32924/2018 (for exemption)

Allowed, subject to all just exceptions.

The application stands disposed-off.

W.P.(CRL) 2909/2018

1. This petition seeks quashing of FIR No. 139/2018 registered at Police Station – IGI Airport, New Delhi, under sections 354/354-D/354A/509 IPC on a complaint made by respondent No. 2. The lis is stated to have been settled amicably. In support of the same, the complainant has filed an affidavit dated 20.09.2018. The complainant /respondent no.2 is present in the Court and has been identified by the Investigating Officer as well as by her counsel. The latter states upon instructions that the complainant does not wish to pursue the matter any further and would like the FIR to be quashed.

2. Ms. Rao, the learned Additional Standing Counsel for the State, submits that the employer of the petitioner has taken a serious view against the petitioner due to the aforementioned complaint. However, since the respondent No. 2 does not wish to pursue the case further against the petitioner, no purpose would be served if he is directed to face trial. Therefore, the State has no objection, if this Court allows the present petition.

3. In the aforesaid circumstances and keeping in mind the decision of the Supreme Court in Gian Singh Vs. State of Punjab and Another (2012) 10 SCC 303, holding that even a non-compoundable offence can also be quashed on the ground of a settlement agreement between the offender and the victim, if the circumstances so warrant; by observing as under:

“58.However, certain offences which overwhelmingly and predominantly bear civil flavour having arisen out of civil, mercantile, commercial, financial, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony, particularly relating to dowry, etc. or the family dispute, where the wrong is basically to the victim and the offender and the victim have settled all disputes between them amicably, irrespective of the fact that such offences have not been made compoundable, the High Court may within the framework of its inherent power, quash the criminal proceeding or criminal complaint or FIR if it is satisfied that on the face of such settlement, there is hardly any likelihood of the offender being convicted and by not quashing the criminal proceedings, justice shall be casualty and ends of justice shall be defeated.”

4. The amicable resolution of cases like the present one is an abiding objective. The dictum of Gian Singh (supra) has been affirmed by the Apex Court in Narinder Singh & Ors. Vs. State of Punjab & Anr. 2014 6 SCC

466 while observing:

“29. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we sum up and lay down the following principles by which the High Court would be guided in giving adequate treatment to the settlement between the parties and exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code while accepting the settlement and quashing the proceedings or refusing to accept the settlement with direction to continue with the criminal proceedings:

29.1. Power conferred under Section 482 of the Code is to be distinguished from the power which lies in the Court to compound the offences under Section 320 of the Code. No doubt, under Section 482 of the Code, the High Court has inherent power to quash the criminal proceedings even in those cases which are not compoundable, where the parties have settled the matter between themselves. However, this power is to be exercised sparingly and with caution.

29.2. When the parties have reached the settlement and on that basis petition for quashing the criminal proceedings is filed, the guiding factor in such cases would be to secure:

(i) ends of justice, or

(ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any court.

While exercising the power the High Court is to form an opinion on either of the aforesaid two objectives.

29.3. Such a power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involve heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, for the offences alleged to have been committed under special statute like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender.

29.4. On the other hand, those criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominantly civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes should be quashed when the parties have resolved their entire disputes among themselves.

29.5. While exercising its powers, the High Court is to examine as to whether the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal cases would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal cases.

29.6. Offences under Section 307 IPC would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore are to be generally treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 IPC in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of Section 307 IPC is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to proving the charge under Section 307 IPC. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delegate parts of the body, nature of weapons used, etc. Medical report in respect of injuries suffered by the victim can generally be the guiding factor. On the basis of this prima facie analysis, the High Court can examine as to whether there is a strong possibility of conviction or the chances of conviction are remote and bleak. In the former case it can refuse to accept the settlement and quash the criminal proceedings whereas in the latter case it would be permissible for the High Court to accept the plea compounding the offence based on complete settlement between the parties. At this stage, the Court can also be swayed by the fact that the settlement between the parties is going to result in harmony between them which may improve their future relationship.

29.7. While deciding whether to exercise its power under Section 482 of the Code or not, timings of settlement play a crucial role. Those cases where the settlement is arrived at immediately after the alleged commission of offence and the matter is still under investigation, the High Court may be liberal in accepting the settlement to quash the criminal proceedings/investigation. It is because of the reason that at this stage the investigation is still on and even the charge-sheet has not been filed. Likewise, those cases where the charge is framed but the evidence is yet to start or the evidence is still at infancy stage, the High Court can show benevolence in exercising its powers favourably, but after prima facie assessment of the circumstances/material mentioned above. On the other hand, where the prosecution evidence is almost complete or after the conclusion of the evidence the matter is at the stage of argument, normally the High Court should refrain from exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code, as in such cases the trial court would be in a position to decide the case finally on merits and to come to a conclusion as to whether the offence under Section 307 IPC is committed or not. Similarly, in those cases where the conviction is already recorded by the trial court and the matter is at the appellate stage before the High Court, mere compromise between the parties would not be a ground to accept the same resulting in acquittal of the offender who has already been convicted by the trial court. Here charge is proved under Section 307 IPC and conviction is already recorded of a heinous crime and, therefore, there is no question of sparing a convict found guilty of such a crime.”

5. The Court is of the view that since the lis has been amicably settled, nothing further survives in the case and the FIR has been denuded of its substratum and any further proceedings emanating therefrom would be an exercise in futility, therefore, in the interest of justice, the FIR should be quashed.
6. In the circumstances, FIR No. 139/2018 registered at Police Station – IGI Airport, New Delhi, under sections 354/354-D/354A/509 IPC and all proceedings emanating therefrom are hereby quashed.

7. At this stage, the learned counsel for the petitioner states that because of the unnecessary pressure caused by him upon the administrative machinery engaged in the maintenance of law and order, as his expression of remorse and contrition, the petitioner is ready and willing to undertake some social work. Accordingly, the petitioner is directed to report before the Deputy Conservator of Forests (South), GNCTD, on 28.09.2018 at 11.00 am, who shall assign him duties of planting 100 plants/trees in the Forest Area recovered by the District Magistrate (South), New Delhi, around Bhati Mines, New Delhi. Additionally, the petitioner has volunteered to plant 100 trees in the area of his residence in Bengaluru. For this purpose, he shall report to the District Magistrate concerned on 15.10.2018, who may assign him duties apropos the same. The trees shall be of deciduous indigenous variety and they shall be three years old or have a height of at least six feet. An affidavit of compliance shall be filed on or before 31.10.2018 along with photographs of the plantation in this regard, by the petitioner and Deputy Conservator of Forests (South), failing which, the case shall be listed for directions on 12.11.2018.

8. The petition is allowed in the above terms.

9. A copy of this order be given dasti to the learned counsel for the parties under signature of the Court Master as well as a copy be sent to the aforesaid Authorities for information.
