ORAL ORDER

3 16-11-2019 Instant petition under section 438 of Criminal Procedure Code has been moved for grant of anticipatory bail in FIR No.57 of 2019, dated 26.05.2019, registered at Police Station Pasraha under sections 395 and 412 of the Indian Penal Code.

I have heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Additional Public Prosecutor for the State. I have also perused the relevant record of the case, necessary for adjudication of this petition.

The allegation against the accused is of having committed an act of dacoity inasmuch as certain boxes of items of fruits/vegetables were taken away by the assailants from the vehicle driven by the complainant.

Bail application is seriously opposed on the ground that the accused is an absconder and as such in view the law laid down by this Court in Kamakhya Narayan Singh @ Kamachhaya Singh v. The State of Bihar, 2017 (4) PLJR 576 and the Apex Court in Lavesh Versus State (NCT of Delhi), (Criminal Appeal No.1331 of 2012 arising out of SLP (Crl.) No.1961 of 2012) decided on 31.12.2012, the application seeking pre-arrest bail is not maintainable.

The decisions cited are clearly distinguishable. The ratio of the law laid down in the said decisions is that only when an accused is declared to be an absconder and proceeding under Sections 82 and 83 of the Code of Criminal Procedure stands issued, he would not have a right for grant of pre-arrest bail. However, in the instant case, no such acts stand placed on record. The term 'absconder' is loosely used by the prosecutor. There is nothing on record to highlight that the police made an attempt in tracing the accused. By simply noting in the diary that the accused is an absconder that by itself would not be considered as sufficient compliance of the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Declaring a person an absconder is a very very serious act. It has to be done strictly in accordance with the Code of Criminal Procedure. Here, one finds that in almost every case, the police report records the person to be an absconder. The Public Prosecutors do have a duty in the system of dispensation of administration of Justice, in correctly educating the Investigating Officer of the procedure to be followed for terming a person 'absconder'.

Record does not reveal how many times and when the police went for search to the accused and it also does not reveal that the police had taken steps under Sections 82 and 83 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for declaring the accused to be absconder. Such statement of the learned Additional Public Prosecutor made on behalf of the State that the instant anticipatory bail application is not maintainable is legally unsustainable.

Coming to the merits of the matter, this Court is of the considered view, more so, for the nature of the crime and the fact that no recovery was ever effected from the accused, a case for grant of anticipatory bail stands made out by the accused, who is a poor villager, and perhaps has got nothing to do with the crime and according to him even he was not present at the spot of the crime.

It is settled law that the grant of bail is the discretion of the court, but the discretion must be exercised not in opposition to, but in accordance with the well established principles of law.

The law laid down in Gudikanti Narasimhulu Versus public prosecutor, (1978) 1 SCC 240 by Justice Krishna Iyer explains the judicial discretion as- the unspoken but inescapable, silent command of our judicial system, and those who exercise it will remember that discretion when to a court of justice, means sound discretion guided by law. It must be governed by rule, not by humor, it must not be arbitrary, vague and fanciful, but legal and regular.

The similar observation was made by the Hon'ble Supreme court in another case of Jai Prakash Singh vs State of Bihar and another, reported in 2012 Cri. L.J. 2101.

The Courts owe more than verbal respect to the principle that punishment begins after conviction and that every man is deemed to be innocent until duly tried and duly found guilty.

In the case of Sidharam Saltingappa Mhetre Vs. State of Maharastra (2011) 1 SCC 694, the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed : "Personal liberty is very precious fundamental be curtailed only when it becomes imperative according to the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case". While relying upon its decision rendered by its Constitution Bench in Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia vs. State of Punjab, (1980) 2 SCC

565, laid down the following parameters for grant of bail:-

"111. No inflexible guidelines or straitjacket formula can be provided for grant or refusal of anticipatory bail. We are clearly of the view that no attempt should be made to provide rigid and inflexible guidelines in this respect because all circumstances and situations of future cannot be clearly visualized for the grant or refusal of anticipatory bail. In consonance with the legislative intention the grant or refusal of anticipatory bail should necessarily depend on facts and circumstances of each case. As aptly observed in the Constitution Bench decision in Sibbia's case (supra) that the High Court or the Court of Sessions to exercise their jurisdiction under section 438 Cr.P.C. by a wise and careful use of their discretion which by their long training and experience they are ideally suited to do. In any event, this is the legislative mandate which we are bound to respect and honour."

Going through the provisions of Section 438 Cr.P.C., the four factors, which are relevant for considering the application for grant of anticipatory bail, are :

- (i) the nature and gravity or seriousness of accusation as apprehended by the applicant;
- (ii) the antecedents of the applicant including the fact as to whether he has, on conviction by a Court, previously undergone imprisonment for a term in respect of any cognizable offence;

(iii) the likely object of the accusation to humiliate or malign the reputation of the applicant by having him so arrested; and

(iv) the possibility of the appellant, if granted anticipatory bail, fleeing from justice.

In State of Maharashtra vs. Mohd. Sajid Hussain 2008

(1) SCC (CrL.) 176, the Hon'ble Supreme Court, while examining the principles governing grant of anticipatory bail, held that one of the four factors relevant for considering the application for grant of anticipatory bail is the possibility of the applicant, if granted anticipatory bail fleeing from justice.

The Apex Court in Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre (supra) laid down certain factors and parameters to be considered while considering application for anticipatory bail :

"122. The following factors and parameters can be taken into consideration while dealing with the anticipatory bail:

i. The nature and gravity of the accusation and the exact role of the accused must be properly comprehended before arrest is made;

ii. The antecedents of the applicant including the fact as to whether the accused has previously undergone imprisonment on conviction by a Court in respect of any cognizable offence;

iii. The possibility of the applicant to flee from justice;

iv. The possibility of the accused's likelihood to repeat similar or the other offences.

v. Where the accusations have been made only with the object of injuring or humiliating the applicant by arresting him or her.

vi. Impact of grant of anticipatory bail particularly in cases of large magnitude affecting a very large number of people.

vii. The courts must evaluate the entire available material against the accused very carefully. The court must also clearly comprehend the exact role of the accused in the case. The cases in which accused is implicated with the help of sections 34 and 149 of the Indian Penal Code, the court should consider with even greater care and caution because over - implication in the cases is a matter of common knowledge and concern;

viii. While considering the prayer for grant of anticipatory bail, a balance has to be struck between two factors namely, no prejudice should be caused to the free, fair and full investigation and there should be prevention of harassment, humiliation and unjustified detention of the accused;

ix. The court to consider reasonable apprehension of tampering of the witness or apprehension of threat to the complainant;

x. Frivolity in prosecution should always be considered and it is only the element of genuineness that shall have to be considered in the matter of grant of bail and in the event of there being some doubt as to the genuineness of the prosecution, in the normal course of events, the accused is entitled to an order of bail.

The court granting bail should exercise its discretion in a judicious manner and not as a matter of course. Though at the stage of granting bail a detailed examination of evidence and elaborate documentation of the merit of the case need not be undertaken, there is a need to indicate in such orders reasons for prima facie concluding why bail was being granted particularly where the accused is charged of having committed a serious offence.

In Vilas Pandurang Pawar Versus State of Maharastra (2012) 8 SCC 795 also it was held that while considering application for bail, scope for appreciation of evidence and other material on record is limited. Court is not expected to indulge in critical analysis of evidence on record.

In the light of the above facts and circumstances, the present petition is allowed.

Yadav, resident of Village-Baisa, P.S. Parbatta (Maraiya), District-Khagaria, in the event of his arrest, be enlarged on bail subject to the following terms and conditions:
