Order On Board by Prashant Kumar Mishra J.

10/07/2019

1. On due consideration, IA No.1/2019, application for condonation of delay in filing the CRMP, is allowed and the delay of 300 days in filing the CRMP is condoned.
2. The Trial Court has acquitted the accused from the charge under Section 304-B of IPC.
3. Statement of PW-1 Ganesh Ram, father of the deceased, would highlight that the deceased was treated with cruelty in the name of dowry, however, he has not stated about demand of any particular item or cash. In the cross-examination, this witness would admit that the main dispute between his daughter and son-in-law was concerning his ill habit of drinking and gambling.

4. There being no specific allegation of demand of any particular item or cash and in view of the evidence about the main reason about their soured relation, the offence under Section 304-B of IPC is not made.
5. No case for interference in this CRMP is made out. Accordingly, it is dismissed.
