

S.No.237

IN THE HIGH COURT OF PUNJAB AND HARYANA AT CHANDIGARH

CRR No.2854 of 2018(O&M)

Date of Decision:15.03.2019

Sahib Singh

.....Petitioner

Vs.

Ram Phal and anotherRespondents

CORAM:- HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE RAJBIR SEHRAWAT

Present:- Mr. D.S. Virk, Advocate for the petitioner.

Mr. Sandeep Berwal, Advocate for respondent No.1.

Mr. M.D. Sharma, Advocate for respondent No.2.

Rajbir Sehrawat, J.(Oral)

Sahib Singh-accused has directed the present revision petition against the judgment dated 09.08.2018 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Kaithal, vide which, the appeal preferred by the petitioner-accused against the judgment and order dated 18.09.2015 passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kaithal, who convicted the petitioner-accused under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instrument Act, (in short- the NI Act) and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of 02 years and further to pay compensation to the tune of double the amount of cheques to complainant, i.e. Rs.3,38,000/- within five months from the date of passing of that order, was dismissed.

Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that he has repaid the agreed amount i.e. 2,50,000/- to the complainant and the dispute between the parties stands settled amicably.

Learned counsel for the complainant submits that full and final payment has been received and complainant has agreed to compromise the case and he would be having no objection if the petitioner is acquitted of charge and released from jail.

The petitioner had filed an application i.e. CRM No.39318 of 2018 praying therein for permission for compounding the offence on the basis of compromise effected between both the parties and on the grounds mentioned in the application. Accordingly, vide order dated 28.11.2018, the parties were directed to appear before the trial Court/ Illaqa Magistrate for getting their statements recorded qua the genuineness of the compromise and the trial Court/ Illaqa Magistrate was directed to send a report in this regard to this Court.

In compliance thereof, report of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kaithal, dated 19.01.2019, has been received, wherein, it has been noticed that the compromise arrived at between the parties is genuine, voluntarily, without any pressure or undue influence and none of the accused persons have been declared as proclaimed offender.

Further, as per the report, in compliance of the order dated 28.11.2018, the petitioner has also deposited the cost of Rs.15,000/- as compounding charges; with the District Legal Services Authority, Kaithal on 15.01.2019; in terms of the judgment of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Damodar S. Prabhu v. Sayed Babalal H., 2010 (5) SCC 663.

The ultimate aim, objective and goal of a legal system is to reconcile the social conflicts. Law is required only to ensure that people do not have to fight with each other just to protect their right to property, right to life and liberty and other rights secured to them by the legal system. The civil disputes are the conflicts between two parties, having lesser overtones for the social order, social harmony or the society as such. Hence absolute freedom is given to the parties to settle their disputes by compromises, of course, coming with certain legal consequences as well. However, the criminal disputes do not necessarily restrict themselves to only two parties to the dispute in terms of their scope, consequences and effect. The criminal acts tend to cast their effect and consequences even upon the society at large. Therefore, the law prescribes punishment, severe punishments and the extreme punishments, including death penalty for criminal acts.

However more often than not the civil disputes or inter-se conflicts of two parties transform themselves into criminal aspect. Therefore, the legal system plays a role to resolve the conflict between two parties; with the added task of ensuring that the adverse impact of dispute on society at large is minimized. But still the core idea is to resolve the conflict between two sides by putting it to rest. Therefore, even the criminal law is required to give due regard to the wishes of the parties to dispute. Recognizing this principle only, the Indian legal System also provides for recognizing the compromise between two sides of a criminal dispute. Section 320 Cr.P.C. is an express provision in this regard. This section not only provides for compounding during the trial, but permits compounding even at appellate or revisional stage. However by its very nature and scope, Section 320 Cr.P.C. cannot be the sole repository; wherein the recognition to a compromise between the parties have; necessarily; to be confined. This section relates only to the offences prescribed under the Indian Penal Code. There are a lot more offences prescribed outside IPC. Even to the offences existing in the IPC new dimensions are added from time to time, making the existing offences to be lighter or stringent and even new modalities of proof of offences are being recognised in view of technological advancement. This necessitates and requires the need for looking beyond Section 320 Cr.P.C. to recognise the compromise between the parties to dispute. But to maintain the sanctity of the procedure prescribed for criminal trial; the Trial Court cannot be permitted to travel beyond the scope prescribed under that procedure. Hence the need for invoking Section 482 Cr.P.C. by the High Court.

But, as observed above, the wishes of only parties to the criminal dispute would not always be sufficient to terminate a criminal trial in view of the patent, latent or subtle effect; their conduct would have left qua the society at large. Therefore the offences committed by persons involved in governance or administration for acquiring official power or while exercising office power cannot be permitted to be compromised. Likewise, even the offences involving only two private persons, but reflecting depravity of character or involving causing intentional loss of life or causing intentional loss of property by extending imminent threat of loss of life; cannot be permitted to be compromised. Except the abovementioned grave offences, there is every reason that all other offences should be permitted to be compromised by the Court. Since the proof of offences before the Court, again would involve the conduct of the parties to dispute, therefore if the Court does not permit the same to be compromised then the parties would tend to play tricks upon the Court to ensure the acquittal of accused by subverting the administration of criminal justice. And it is never in the interest of administration of criminal justice to force the citizen to learn and adopt the tricks designed to be played upon Courts to subvert the justice system. So it would always be in the interest of justice itself; that the compromise between the parties is recognized and the citizen remain moored and committed to the essentials of the system of administration of justice, at least, qua those offences, which the interest of society does not permit to be compromised.

Hon'ble the Supreme Court has amply clarified the legal position on recognizing compromising in the case of Gian Singh Vs. State of Punjab and another, 2012(4) RCR (Criminal) 543, and has observed as under:-

“57. The position that emerges from the above discussion can be summarised thus: the power of the High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from the power given to a criminal court for compounding the offences under Section 320 of the Code. Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation but it has to be exercised in accord with the guideline engrafted in such power viz; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court. In what cases power to quash the criminal proceeding or complaint or F.I.R may be exercised where the offender and victim have settled their dispute would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no category can be prescribed.

However, before exercise of such power, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. cannot be fittingly quashed even though the victim or victim's family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have serious impact on society. Similarly, any compromise between the victim and offender in relation to the offences under special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity etc; cannot provide for any basis for quashing criminal proceedings involving such offences. But the criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominatingly civil flavour stand on different footing for the purposes of quashing, particularly the offences arising from commercial, financial, mercantile, civil, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony relating to dowry, etc. or the family disputes where the wrong is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have resolved their entire dispute. In this category of cases, High Court may quash criminal proceedings if in its view, because of the compromise between the offender and victim, the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal case would put accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal case despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. In other words, the High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to the interest of justice to continue with the criminal proceeding or continuation of the criminal proceeding would tantamount to abuse of process of law despite settlement and compromise between the victim and wrongdoer and whether to secure the ends of justice, it is appropriate that criminal case is put to an end and if the answer to the above question(s) is in affirmative, the High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceeding.”

The present case does not fall in anyone of the exceptions envisaged above. Hence, in view of the report of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kaithal, dated 19.01.2019 made in pursuance of the order dated 28.11.2018 passed by this Court, the Court feels that no useful purpose would be served by keeping the proceedings alive. It will be in the interest of justice, if the settlement reached between the parties is accepted.

Accordingly, the present petition is allowed. The complaint under Section 138 of the NI Act and all consequential proceedings arising therefrom, including the conviction and sentence order dated 18.09.2015, passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kaithal and judgment dated 09.08.2018 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Kaithal, are hereby set aside; on the basis of compromise arrived at between the parties and the petitioner is acquitted of the charge.

March 15, 2019
renu

(RAJBIR SEHRAWAT)
JUDGE

Whether Speaking/reasoned
Whether Reportable

Yes/No
Yes/No