ALKA SARI N (Or al)

The present suit was for permanent injunction restraining the defendant - respondents from digging a sewerage pipe through the suit property. Both the Courts below have dismissed the suit of the plaintiff - appellant. Against the judgments and decrees passed by both the Courts below, the present appeal has been preferred. Since there was no stay granted in the present appeal, learned counsel for the appellant submits that during the interregnum period the sewerage pipe has already been laid. In view thereof, the appeal is dismissed as having been rendered infructuous.
