proceeding cannot be done for the mere asking. The sole ground urged is that the marriage was dissolved by a decree for divorce. It is open to the petitioner to go before the concerned Magistrate and seek discharge. I do not see any ground to quash the proceedings as quashing of a complaint under Domestic Violence Act is equivalent to quashing of a First Information Report. The revision filed under Article 227 cannot be entertained in such case unless there are very strong reasons available for taking such extreme step.

2.This civil revision petition therefore, fails and it is accordingly dismissed. No costs. Consequently, connected miscellaneous petitions are closed.
