Companies, Chennai reported in 2022 SCC OnLine Mad 102 dated 11.01.2022, in which the Court held as follows:

12. The expression “continuing offence” has not been defined in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. However, the courts have explained the same in number of judgments. In the case of continuing offence, the ingredients of offence continues even after the offence takes place, whereas in an instantaneous offence, the offence took place once and for all, in such case, there is no continuance of offence. For the offence arising out of a failure to comply with a statutory provision, which involves penalty, the liability continues until the default is complied with. With and on every moment of such non compliance occurs and recurs, there is an offence committed and it is a continuing offence until the default is complied with.

13. In Udai Shankar Awasthi v. State of U.P., (2013) 2 SCC 435, the Honourable Supreme Court has explained the expression “continuing offence” as under:- “

.....Continuing offence means ‘type of crime which is committed over a span of time’. As to period of statute of limitation in a continuing offence, the last act of the offence controls for commencement of the period. ‘A continuing offence, such that only the last act thereof within the period of the statute of limitations need be alleged in the indictment or information, is one which may consist of separate acts or a course of conduct but which arises from that singleness of thought, purpose or action which may be deemed a single impulse’.

26. In State of Bihar v. Deokaran Nenshi [(1972) 2 SCC 890], wherein the Court while dealing with the case of continuance of an offence has held as under

5. A "continuing offence" is one which is susceptible of continuance and is distinguishable from the one which is committed once and for all. It is one of those offences which arises out of a failure to obey or comply with a rule or its requirement and which involves a penalty, the liability for which continues until the rule or its requirement is obeyed or complied with. On every occasion that such disobedience or non compliance occurs and reoccurs, there is the offence committed.

In the case of a continuing offence, there is thus the ingredient of continuance of the offence which is absent in the case of an offence which takes place when an act or omission is committed once and for all."

..... 29. Thus, in view of the above, the law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that, in the case of a continuing offence, the ingredients of the offence continue i.e. endure even after the period of consummation, whereas in an instantaneous offence, the offence takes place once and for all i.e. when the same actually takes place. In such cases, there is no continuing offence, even though the damage resulting from the injury may itself continue."

14. The Companies Act, 1956, provides different kinds of punishments for various offences committed by the companies. For certain offences, took place once and for all, the Act provide only maximum punishment. For some kind of offences, for example, under Section 159, 160, 161 and 220 of the Act, relating to non filing of returns and some other documents before the Registrar of Companies, the punishment is provided under Section 162 of the Act, which reads as follows:- "162. (1) If a company fails to comply with any of the provisions contained in section 159, 160 or 161, the company and every officer of the company who is in default, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues. There is a clear distinction between the punishment. The penalty of payment of fine for every day till the default continues, indicates that, the offence continues until the default is complied with, which makes the offence a continuous offence.

15. In cases where the offence is a continuing offence, section 472 of Cr.P.C. saves limitation and a fresh period of limitation shall begin to run every moment of the time during which the offence continues.

9. The penalty prescribed under Section 629(A) of the Act has to be applied for the offence under Section 224(8)(b). The penalty prescribed under Section 629(A) of the Act is a fine of Rs.5000/- which may extend to five hundred rupees for every day during which the contravention continues. The period of limitation of six months does not apply to the present case since the offence is a continuing one.

10. For the reasons stated supra, the offence is held to be continuing one and the period of limitation as contended by Party in Person/ Petitioner does not come into operation. It is held that the complaint filed by the respondent is in time. Hence, the Criminal Original Petition is dismissed. Consequently, connected Miscellaneous Petitions are closed.
