The petitioner, who apprehends arrest for the alleged offences under Section 341, 294(b) and 307 IPC in Crime No.155 of 2022 on the file of the respondent police, seeks anticipatory bail.

2. The case of the prosecution is that due to a property dispute, the petitioner and others have assaulted the defacto complainant when he had gone to attend a funeral ceremony.

3. The learned counsel appearing for the petitioner would submit that the petitioner and the defacto complainant are relatives, there is an existing civil dispute pending between them in respect of the property. Whiles, the petitioners grandmother/Rosemary passed away on 01.09.2022 and when the petitioner and his family members were making arrangements for funeral, the defacto complainant along with his men trespassed into the house of the petitioner and created ruckus and during quarrel he sustained injuries and he has falsely projected the case as a case of attempt to commit murder. He would submit that even as per the discharge summary, the injuries sustained by the victim was stated to be simple and diagnosed as laceration injury. The injured is also discharged from the hospital. He would prayed for grant of anticipatory bail.
