2.The petitioner filed the present writ petition at the age of 73 years and after a lapse of about 15 years from the date of retirement. Now he would be around 77 years. The relief sought for is to refix the seniority and such belated claims cannot be entertained by the Courts. A person who slept over his grievances cannot wake up and knock the doors of the Court after several years and in the event of refixing the seniority at belated point of time, it would result in prejudice to the other employees and the consequences and repercussions will be larger. Even as per the Rules, the dispute relating to seniority are to be settled, within a period of three years and the aggrieved employees have to approach the authorities, within the said period for redressal of their grievances. However, in the present case, the petitioner failed to do so and filed the present writ petition after a lapse of three years from the date of retirement and at this length of time, his claim for refixation of seniority cannot be considered. More so, settled seniority cannot be unsettled after several years.
