

IN THE HIGH COURT OF PUNJAB AND HARYANA AT CHANDIGARH

CRR No. 2059 of 2022 (O&M)

Date of Decision: 29th September, 2022

Raj Kumar

... Petitioner

Versus

State of Punjab

... Respondent

CORAM : HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE AVNEESH JHINGAN

Present : Mr. H. S. Jalal, Advocate for the petitioner.
Mr. APS Tung, DAG, Punjab.

AVNEESH JHINGAN, J.(Oral)

This criminal revision is filed against the order dated 19.4.2022 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Barnala whereby the petitioner was directed to give his voice sample. The revision petition is accompanied by an application for condonation of delay of 71 days in filing the revision petition.

The brief facts are that the petitioner is an accused in FIR No. 20 dated 5.12.2019, under Section 7 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 (Amendment 2018) and Section 120-B IPC, registered at Police Station Vigilance Bureau, Patiala Range, Patiala.

Learned counsel for the petitioner assails the impugned order. It is submitted that order is violative of Article 20 of the Constitution of India, no certificate under Section 65-B of the Indian Evidence Act has been produced and the order was passed at the back of the petitioner.

Learned State counsel appearing on advance notice defends the impugned order.

The first contention raised by learned counsel for the petitioner is no longer res-integra. The Supreme Court in Ritesh Sinha ((2019) 8 SCC 1) held that the direction to give voice sample does not infringe article 20(3) of the Constitution of India. It was held that the voice sample is only for purpose of comparison and is not a testimony.

The Supreme Court while dealing with the question “Whether Article 20(3) of the Constitution of India, which protects a person accused of an offence from being compelled to be a witness against himself, extends to protecting such an accused from being compelled to give his voice sample during the course of investigation into an offence,” considering the earlier decision in “State of Bombay vs. Kathi Kalu Oghad; AIR 1961 SC 1808” answered the question in negative.

Voice sample in a sense resembles finger prints and hand writing, each person has a distinctive voice with characteristic features dictated by vocal cavities and articulates. The samples are collected after having permission in accordance with law. The sample taken itself would not be an evidence, rather they are for comparing the evidence already collected.

The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that no certificate under Section 65-B of the Act was produced, needs no adjudication at this stage. The application for voice sample was filed for further investigation of the matter, it was not the stage for production of certificate under Section 65-B of the Act, even if required.

Supreme Court in case of Arjun Pandit Rao Khotkar Vs. Kailash Kushanrao Gorantyal and others (2020) 7 SCC 1 held that Section 65-B (4) of the Act does not mention the stage of furnishing the certificate. The decision in State of Karnataka Vs. M.R.. Hiremath 2019 (7) SCC 515 was noted wherein it was held that failure to produce certificate under Section 65-B (4) of the Act at the stage of charge sheet will not be fatal. The certificate is needed when recording is to be produced in trial as evidence. Relevant paras are quoted below:-

“50. We may hasten to add that Section 65B does not speak of the stage at which such certificate must be furnished to the Court. In Anvar P.V. (supra), this Court did observe that such certificate must accompany the electronic record when the same is produced in evidence. We may only add that this is so in cases where such certificate could be procured by the person seeking to rely upon an electronic record. However, in cases where either a defective certificate is given, or in cases where such certificate has been demanded and is not given by the concerned person, the Judge conducting the trial must summon the person/persons referred to in Section 65B(4) of the Evidence Act, and require that such certificate be given by such person/persons. This, the trial Judge ought to do when the electronic record is produced in evidence before him without the requisite certificate in the circumstances aforementioned. This is, of course, subject to discretion being exercised in civil cases in accordance with law, and in accordance with the requirements of justice on the facts of each case. When it comes to criminal trials, it is important to keep in mind the general principle that the accused must be supplied all documents that the prosecution seeks to rely upon before commencement of the trial, under the relevant sections of the CrPC.

51. In a recent judgment, a Division Bench of this Court in State of Karnataka v. M.R. Hiremath (2019) 7 SCC 515 : 2019(3) RCR (Criminal) 144, after referring to Anvar P.V. (supra) held:

"16. The same view has been reiterated by a two-Judge Bench of this Court in Union of India v. Ravindra V. Desai [(2018) 16 SCC 273 : 2018(2) S.C.T. 648]. The Court emphasised that non-production of a certificate under Section 65B on an earlier occasion is a curable defect. The Court relied upon the earlier decision in Sonu v. State of Haryana [(2017) 8 SCC 570], in which it was held:

"32. ... The crucial test, as affirmed by this Court, is whether the defect could have been cured at the stage of marking the document. Applying this test to the present case, if an objection was taken to the CDRs being marked without a certificate, the court could have given the prosecution an opportunity to rectify the deficiency."

17. Having regard to the above principle of law, the High Court erred in coming to the conclusion that the failure to produce a certificate under Section 65B(4) of the Evidence Act at the stage when the charge-sheet was filed was fatal to the prosecution. The need for production of such a certificate would arise when the electronic record is sought to be produced in evidence at the trial. It is at that stage that the necessity of the production of the certificate would arise."

52. It is pertinent to recollect that the stage of admitting documentary evidence in a criminal trial is the filing of the charge-sheet. When a criminal court summons the accused to stand trial, copies of all documents which are entered in the charge-sheet/final report have to be given to the accused. section 207 of the CrPC, 1973 which reads as follows, is mandatory. Therefore, the electronic evidence, i.e. the computer output, has to be furnished at the latest before the trial begins. The reason is not far to seek; this gives the accused a fair chance to prepare and defend the charges levelled against him during the trial. The general principle in criminal proceedings therefore, is to supply to the accused all documents that the prosecution seeks to rely upon before the commencement of the trial. The requirement of such full disclosure is an extremely valuable right and an essential feature of the right to a fair trial as it enables the accused to prepare for the trial before its commencement."

53. In a criminal trial, it is assumed that the investigation is completed and the prosecution has, as such, concretised its case against an accused before commencement of the trial. It is further settled law that the prosecution ought not to be allowed to fill up any lacunae during a trial. As recognised by this Court in Central Bureau of Investigation v. R.S. Pai (2002) 5 SCC 82 : 2002(2) RCR (Criminal) 536, the only exception to this general rule is if the prosecution had 'mistakenly' not filed a document, the said document can be allowed to be placed on record. The Court held as follows:

"7. From the aforesaid sub-sections, it is apparent that normally, the investigating officer is required to produce all the relevant documents at the time of submitting the charge-sheet. At the same time, as there is no specific prohibition, it cannot be held that the additional documents cannot be produced subsequently. If some mistake is committed in not producing the relevant documents at the time of submitting the report or the charge-sheet, it is always open to the investigating officer to produce the same with the permission of the court."

54. Therefore, in terms of general procedure, the prosecution is obligated to supply all documents upon which reliance may be placed to an accused before commencement of the trial. Thus, the exercise of power by the courts in criminal trials in permitting evidence to be filed at a later stage should not result in serious or irreversible prejudice to the accused. A balancing exercise in respect of the rights of parties has to be carried out by the court, in examining any application by the prosecution under sections 91 or 311 of the CrPC, 1973 or Section 165 of the Evidence Act. Depending on the facts of each case, and the Court exercising discretion after seeing that the accused is not prejudiced by want of a fair trial, the Court may in appropriate cases allow the prosecution to produce such certificate at a later point in time. If it is the accused who desires to produce the requisite certificate as part of his defence, this again will depend upon the justice of the case - discretion to be exercised by the Court in accordance with law.

55. The High Court of Rajasthan in Paras Jain v. State of Rajasthan 2015 SCC Online Raj 8331, decided a preliminary objection that was raised on the applicability of Section 65B to the facts of the case. The preliminary objection raised was framed as follows:

"3. (i) Whether transcriptions of conversations and for that matter CDs of the same filed alongwith the chargesheet are not admissible in evidence even at this stage of the proceedings as certificate as required under Section 65-B of the Evidence Act was not obtained at the time of procurement of said CDs from the concerned service provider and it was not produced alongwith chargesheet in the prescribed form and such certificate cannot be filed subsequently."

After referring to Anvar P.V. (supra), the High Court held:

"15. Although, it has been observed by Hon'ble Supreme Court that the requisite certificate must accompany the electronic record pertaining to which a statement is sought to be given in evidence when the same is produced in evidence, but in my view it does not mean that it must be produced alongwith the charge-sheet and if it is not produced alongwith the charge-sheet, doors of the Court are completely shut and it cannot be produced subsequently in any circumstance. Section 65B of the Evidence Act deals with admissibility of secondary evidence in the form of electronic record and the procedure to be followed and the requirements be fulfilled before such an evidence can be held to be admissible in evidence and not with the stage at which such a certificate is to be produced before the Court.

One of the principal issues arising for consideration in the above case before Hon'ble Court was the nature and manner of admission of electronic records.

23. When legal position is that additional evidence, oral or documentary, can be produced during the course of trial if in the opinion of the Court production of it is essential for the proper disposal of the case, how it can be held that the certificate as required under Section 65B of the Evidence Act cannot be produced subsequently in any circumstances if the same was not procured alongwith the electronic record and not produced in the Court with the charge-sheet. In my opinion it is only an irregularity not going to the root of the matter and is curable. It is also pertinent to note that certificate was produced alongwith the charge-sheet but it was not in a proper form but during the course of hearing these petitioners, it has been produced on the prescribed form."

56. In Kundan Singh (supra), a Division Bench of the Delhi High Court held:

"50. Anwar P.V. (supra) partly overruled the earlier decision of the Supreme Court on the procedure to prove electronic record(s) in Navjot Sandhu (supra), holding that Section 65B is a specific provision relating to the admissibility of electronic record(s) and, therefore, production of a certificate under Section 65B(4) is mandatory. Anwar P.V. (supra) does not state or hold that the said certificate cannot be produced in exercise of powers of the trial court under Section 311 Cr.P.C., 1973 or, at the appellate stage under Section 391 Cr.P.C., 1973 Evidence Act is a procedural law and in view of the pronouncement in Anwar P.V. (supra) partly overruling Navjot Sandhu (supra), the prosecution may be entitled to invoke the aforementioned provisions, when justified and required. Of course, it is open to the court/presiding officer at that time to ascertain and verify whether the responsible officer could issue the said certificate and meet the requirements of Section 65B."

57. Subject to the caveat laid down in paragraphs 50 and 54 above, the law laid down by these two High Courts has our concurrence. So long as the hearing in a trial is not yet over, the requisite certificate can be directed to be produced by the learned Judge at any stage, so that information contained in electronic record form can then be admitted, and relied upon in evidence.” (...emphasis supplied)

The relevancy of the recording would be determined only after comparison of voice sample, the requirement of certification under Section 65-B of the Act would arise later when recording is given in evidence.

The argument that the impugned order was passed at the back of the petitioner is mis-conceived. A perusal of the impugned order shows that the impugned order was passed, in the presence of petitioner.

In view of the above discussion, the contentions raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner are rejected. The impugned order is upheld. The petition is dismissed.

Since the main petition has been decided, prayers in the pending applications are rendered infructuous.
