SAURABH BANERJEE, J.

1. As per facts, the petitioner after initially filing US Patent application for grant of a patent on 12.10.2012, through its agents in the U.S.A, filed for grant of the same patent vide a Patent Cooperation Treaty¹ application before the World Intellectual Property Organization² on 14.10.2013 claiming priority therefrom. Thereafter, the petitioner was required to file the National Phase application for the grant of the same patent before the

² Hereinafter referred to as “WIPO”

Indian Patent Office³ within thirty-one months from the priority date, i.e., by 12.05.2015, as thereafter it was to be treated as withdrawn in terms of Section 7A of The Patent Act, 1970⁴ read with Rule 20(3) of The Patent Rules, 2003⁵. However, the petitioner filed the said application before the IPO only after a delay of five months four days after expiry of the aforesaid period (date of actual filing) of thirty-one months, i.e., on 23.10.2015, albeit along with a petition under Rule 137 of Patent Rules and official fees, accompanied by an affidavit explaining the delay from its side. As the aforesaid application of petitioner was filed beyond the statutory period of thirty-one months, no new application number was assigned by the IPO. As per respondents, there was neither any requirement of issuing a new number by the IPO nor there was any requirement of any communication to be sent to the petitioner of the said filing. However, as per petitioner, the respondents intimated the same to it after three years, without according any new number to the filing done by it and without giving any hearing to it, which was itself not permissible. The respondents had issued two communications dated 10.05.2018 and 14.05.2018 in regards to the request of the petitioner for disposal of its petition for reinstatement of patent rights stating therein that no actions in that regard could be taken as there was no requisite application filed by the petitioner in India.

2. It is thereafter that the petitioner has approached this Court vide the present writ petition seeking to declare Rule 22 of Patent Rules as ultra-virus to the provisions of Patent Act and for quashing of the communications dated 10.05.2018 and 14.05.2018 issued by IPO and thence to take the National Phase application of petitioner on record.

³ Hereinafter referred to as “IPO”

⁴ Hereinafter referred to as “Patent Act”

⁵ Hereinafter referred to as “Patent Rules”

3. As per petitioner, Rule 22 of Patent Rules is ultra vires the provisions of Patent Act in as much as after filing an international PCT application under Section 138 of Patent Act designating India, an applicant is required to pay the requisite official fees for the same by indicating its number in Form 1 along with translation of specification, if it is in any other language barring English, however, Rule 22 of Patent Rules prescribes effect of non-compliance of Rule 20 thereof, by extinguishing the rights of an applicant. The same is bad in law as Patent Act itself does not prescribe any consequence for non-compliance of procedural requirements of paying official fee and filing of translation. Further, save and except Rule 22 of Patent Rules, all the instances under which the substantive rights can be extinguished have been provided under Patent Act itself, leaving nothing for the rule making authority.

4. As per petitioner, Rule 22 of Patent Rules is beyond the scope and purview of the rule making power under Section 159 of Patent Act as essential legislative function cannot be delegated in view of the fact that for any 'Rule' to have the effect of a statutory provision, it must (i) conform to provisions of the statute under which it is framed; and (ii) it must come within the scope and purview of the rule making power of the authority framing the rule. If both conditions are not fulfilled, the rule so framed would be void. Such being the position in the present case, the provisions of Rule 22 of Patent Rules is void. Learned counsel for petitioner, in support of the aforesaid, relied upon General Officer Commanding-in-chief & Anr. vs. Dr. Subhash Candra Yadav & Anr.⁶, Additional District

Magistrate(Rcv) Delhi Admn. vs. Sheo Ram & Ors.⁷ and Kunj Behari Lal Butail vs. State of Himachal Pradesh⁸.

5. Additionally, as per petitioner, Rule 22 of Patent Rules clearly transgresses the powers conferred under Section 159 of Patent Act, under which the rule making authority is only permitted to prescribe time limit and fees and has no power delegated to it for making a rule which decides substantive rights of an applicant. However, as per petitioner, Rule 22 of Patent Rules extinguishes the substantive rights of an applicant, since it cannot be sub-delegated or be a part of delegated legislation. The same is an abdication of essential legislative function. In support of his aforesaid contention, learned counsel for petitioner relied upon Municipal Corporation of Delhi vs. Birla Cotton⁹ and Power Machines India Limited vs. State of Madhya Pradesh & Ors.¹⁰.

6. Also, as per petitioner, in view of Rule 23 of Patent Rules made under Chapter III, which also includes Rule 22, the said rules are supplemental to The Patent Cooperation Treaty Rules¹¹ and Patent Cooperation Treaty Regulations¹² and in case of any conflict, the said PCT Rules and PCT Regulations are to prevail. It is in view thereof that as per petitioner, Rule 22 of Patent Rules is inconsistent with Rule 49.6 of PCT Regulations, which stipulates restoration of National Phase application of a PCT application if deadline for said filing National Phase application is missed. However, as per petitioner, though India has made a reservation under Rule 49.6(f) of the PCT Regulations but as the same is temporary/transitory, therefore, the respondents cannot rely on a transitory reservation made twenty years ago. As such, Rule 22 of Patent Rules is also inconsistent with Article 48(2)(b) of PCT Rules which mandates that a Contracting State shall excuse, for reasons admitted under its National Law, any delay in meeting any time limit, and with Rule 137 of Patent Rules, which in fact, provides discretionary powers to the Controller (IPO) to correct any irregularities in the procedure.

7. Also, as per petitioner, in a situation where India is a signatory Nation to an International Treaty and a Statute is made/ amended to enforce a Treaty obligation, if there is any difference between the language of such Statute and a corresponding provision of the Treaty, the statutory language should be construed in the same sense as that of the Treaty. In furtherance thereof, the learned counsel for petitioner had drawn the attention of this Court to Article 64(7) of PCT Rules which makes it abundantly clear that “No reservations to this Treaty other than the reservations under paragraphs (1) to (5) are permitted.” and Rule 49.6 of PCT Regulations is not covered within the ambit of paragraph (1) to (5) of Article 64 of PCT Rules since Rule 49.6 of PCT Regulations has been framed under Chapter I of PCT Rules. For this learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon Commissioner of Customs, Bangalore vs. G.M. Exports and Ors.¹³

8. Further, as per petitioner, Rule 22 of Patent Rules, is directory, and not mandatory and while determining whether a provision is mandatory or directory, it is for the Court to determine various factors, including the overall context, the intention of the legislature, the overall structure and purpose and the consequences therefrom. In continuation of the above, as per petitioner, except Rule 22 of Patent Rules, all the instances under which the substantive rights of an applicant can be extinguished have been provided under the Act itself and have not been left to be decided by the rule making authority and as the purpose of Patent Act is to protect the rights of the inventors in new, inventive and useful inventions, non-compliance of certain procedural requirements should not result in complete extinguishment of inventor's rights in India. For this, the learned counsel for petitioner contended that it is settled law that when a statute is passed for the purpose of enabling something and prescribes the formalities which are to be attended for the purpose, those prescribed formalities which are essential to the validity of such thing, would be mandatory, however, if by holding them to be mandatory, serious general inconvenience is caused to innocent persons or general public, without furthering the object of the Act, the same would be construed as directory.

9. Further, as per petitioner, except a very few countries, all countries including Europe, USA and Australia who are signatories to the PCT, have provisions for restoration of a National Phase application if the deadline for filing the same is missed unintentionally. Thus, an anomaly is created due to Rule 22 of Patent Rules in as much as though an Indian applicant can restore its National Phase application abroad, no international applicant can restore its National Phase application in India.

10. Lastly, it is the case of petitioner that in the present case, the IPO has erred in issuing the impugned communications as they are against the principles of natural justice and have been issued without following the recognized principle of “audi alteram partem” and such acts are against provisions of Rule 129 of Patent Rules. Further, even though the Controller (IPO) is empowered to correct irregularity in procedure by accepting the fees of National Phase application, the said power was not exercised in favour of the petitioner.

11. Per contra, according to respondents, the legislature is the body empowered to formulate a policy as deemed appropriate and it may delegate legislative work to an authority for accomplishing the said task. In terms of Section 7(1A) and Section 21 of Patent Act, it is incumbent to file a corresponding application before the IPO for it to be considered under the Patent Act within the stipulated time as failure to do so would render the application to be treated as abandoned. Admittedly, in the present case, the petitioner never filed the said application within the stipulated time period and thus the same was (deemed to be) abandoned.

12. As per respondents, in view of provisions contained in Section 159 of Patent Act, the Central Government is empowered to frame rules and prescribe time limits to be followed under the said Act and further Section 160 of Patent Act mandates that all the said rules framed under Section 159 of Patent Act shall be laid before both houses of Parliament and only after they are passed in the said Houses, that they are incorporated. As such, as per respondents, the Rules have been framed under Section 159 of Patent Act and the Rule 20(4) of Patent Rules prescribing the time limit of thirty-one months from priority date as referred to in *Article 2(xi)*¹⁴ of the PCT Rules, is also in furtherance of Section 21 of Patent Act.

¹⁴ “Article 2(xi): “priority date,” for the purposes of computing time limits, means: (a) where the international application contains a priority claim under Article 8, the filing date of the application whose priority is so claimed; (b) where the international application contains several priority claims under Article 8, the filing date of the earliest application whose priority is so claimed;”

“Article 8: Claiming Priority (1) The international application may contain a declaration, as prescribed in the Regulations, claiming priority of one or more earlier applications filed in or for any country party to Paris Convention for protection of Industrial Property. (2)(a) Subject to provisions of subparagraph (b), the conditions for, and the effect of, any priority claim declared under paragraph (1) shall be as provided in Article 4 of the Stockholm Act of Paris Convention for protection of Industrial Property. (b) The international application for which priority of one or more earlier applications filed in or for a Contracting State is claimed may contain the designation of that State. Where, in the international application, priority of one or more national applications filed in or for a designated State is claimed, or where priority of an international application having designated only one State is claimed, the conditions for, and the effect of, priority claim in that State shall be governed by the national law of that State.”

13. Drawing a comparison between the existing Rule 138 of Patent Rules after the amendment in 2016 and the previous unamended Rule 138 prior thereto, as per respondents, the power to extend the time for filing an application by one month to the Controller is no more there and that under Rule 138 of Patent Rules, an exception has been created under Rule 20(4) thereof. Accordingly, Patent Act itself provides for abandonment consequently so there is no delegation of any kind. For this reliance has been placed upon a decision rendered by this Court in *Nippon Steel Corporation vs. Union of India*¹⁵.

14. As per respondents, there is no conflict between Rule 22 of Patent Rules with Article 49.6 of PCT Rules, as the same only provides for reinstatement of rights after failure to perform the acts referred to under Article 22 of PCT Rules. Even otherwise, PCT Rules make provisions for a State to apprise the WIPO about non-acceptance of a Clause which is not compatible with the National Law, which in the present case, admittedly, has already been notified by India as it has claimed an exception under Article 49.6(f) of PCT Rules.

15. Refuting that the use of the word “shall” in Rule 22 of Patent Rules is directory and not mandatory, as per respondents, the said word “shall” in fact casts an obligation and provides for consequences in case of failure to fulfil such obligations. Reliance in this regard is placed upon *Sharif-Ud-Din vs. Abdul Gani Lone*¹⁶ by the learned counsel for respondents.

16. We have heard the learned counsels for parties at length and have been ably assisted by them in going through the documents on record along with those handed over during the course of hearing including the various judgements relied upon by both of them. Amongst the numerous grounds taken by the petitioner, this Court has taken into consideration only those which have been put forth by the learned counsel for petitioner during the course of his arguments.

¹⁵ 2011 SCC OnLine Del 669

17. Though the case of the petitioner is primarily restricted to declaration of Rule 22 of Patent Rules as being ultra-virus the provisions of the Patent Act, during the course of arguments, learned counsel for petitioner has taken us through various provisions of the Patent Act, the Patent Rules, the PCT Rules and the PCT Regulations, to contend that Indian Patent law needs a change as it is not in synchronization with the Patent Laws of the World.

18. Before proceeding any further, for the purposes of better elucidation of the facts involved in present petition, it is imperative to reproduce few of the relevant provisions of the Act(s) and Rule(s) involved in the present petition, which are as under: -

Patent Cooperation Treaty, Washington, June 19, 1970:

(b) The communication shall include the translation (as prescribed) of the said report or declaration. (2) If the claims have been amended by virtue of Article 19(1), the communication shall either contain the full text of the claims both as filed and as amended or shall contain the full text of the claims as filed and specify the amendments, and shall include the statement, if any, referred to in Article 19(1).”

“Article 21: International Publication

“Section 21. Time for putting application in order for grant.—(1) An application for a patent shall be deemed to have been abandoned unless, Within such period as may be prescribed, the applicant has complied with all the requirements imposed on him by or under this Act, whether in connection with the complete specification or otherwise in relation to the application from the date on which the first statement of objections to the application or complete specification or other documents related thereto is forwarded to the applicant by the Controller. Explanation.—Where the application for a patent or any specification or, in the case of a convention application or an application filed under The Patent Cooperation Treaty designating India any document filed as part of the application has been returned to the applicant by the Controller in the course of proceedings, the applicant shall not be deemed to have complied with such requirements unless and until he has re-filed it or the applicant proves to the satisfaction of the Controller that for the reasons beyond his control such document could not be re-filed. date as the High Court may determine. (3) If the time within which the appeal mentioned in sub-section (2) may be instituted has not expired, the Controller may extend the period as prescribed under subsection (1), to such further period as he may determine: Provided that if an appeal has been filed during the said further period, and the High Court has granted any extension of time for complying with the requirements of the Controller, then the requirements may be complied with within the time granted by the Court."

“Section 160. Rules to be placed before Parliament.—Every rule made under this Act shall be laid, as soon as may be after it is made, before each House of Parliament while it is in session for a total period of thirty days which may be comprised in one session or in two or more successive sessions, and if, before the expiry of the session immediately following the session or the successive sessions aforesaid, both Houses agree in making any modification in the rule or both Houses agree that the rule should not be made, the rule shall thereafter have effect only in such modified form or be of no effect, as the case may be; so, however, that any such modification or annulment shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under that rule."

The Patent Rules, 2003

“Rule 137. Powers of Controller generally. —Any document for the amendment of which no special provision is made in the Act may be amended and any irregularity in procedure which in the opinion of the Controller may be obviated without detriment to the interests of any person, may be corrected if the Controller thinks fit and upon such terms as he may direct.”

“Rule 138. Power to extend time prescribed.— (1) Except for the time prescribed in clause (i) of sub-rule (4) of rule 20, sub-rule (6) of rule 20, rule 21, sub-rules (1), (5) and (6) of rule 24B, sub-rules (10) and (11) of rule 24C, sub-rule (4) of rule 55, sub-rule (1A) of rule 80 and sub-rules (1) and (2) of rule 130, the time prescribed by these rules for doing of any act or the taking of any proceeding thereunder may be extended by the Controller for a period of one month, if he thinks it fit to do so and upon such terms as he may direct. (2) Any request for extension of time prescribed by these rules for the doing of any act or the taking of any proceeding thereunder shall be made before the expiry of such time prescribed in these rules.”

19. A bare perusal of Article 22 of PCT Rules hereinabove reveals that it is incumbent upon an applicant to furnish a copy of the international application (unless the communication provided for in Article 20 of PCT Rules has already taken place) along with a translation thereof, if required, with payment of National fee, to each designated National Office not later than at the expiration of thirty months from priority date. Not only that, the same Article 22 of PCT Rules also provides that where the National Law of the designated State requires the indication of the name and other prescribed data concerning the inventor and allows that these indications be furnished at a time later than that of the filing of a National Phase application, the applicant shall, unless the said details were contained in the request, furnish the said indications to the National Office of or acting for the State not later than at the expiration of thirty months from priority date. Thus, in essence, as expressly provided, the time for filing a National Phase application before the IPO in India is to be thirty months.

20. A perusal of Section 7(1A) of Patent Act reveals that for grant of a patent in India, an applicant has to mandatorily file a corresponding application before the IPO for all International applications under the PCT designating India within prescribed period of thirty-one months in compliance of the various requirements in terms of Section 21 of Patent Act or else the same shall deemed to be abandoned. As such, save and except unless an applicant like the petitioner herein has filed the application in time, in compliance of the stipulated provisions of Sections 7(1A) and 21 of Patent Act, there is no application filed by the applicant before the Controller (IPO). It is noteworthy that though only a period of thirty months from priority date is available to an applicant as per Article 22 of PCT Rules, however, as per Section 21 of Patent Act, the very same applicant has been granted an extension of one month i.e., total of thirty-one months, to file such an application. We find that there is nothing wrong with the same and in fact it is in complete adherence to the PCT Rules.

21. Filing of an application for a patent (at different levels- initial application before country, another application before the WIPO and lastly a National Phase application before the Designation Office), within the stipulated time frame is of utmost importance. It is for this reason that the whole purpose of the patent regime worldwide is to recognize an applicant after according due chance of filing and letting the said applicant enjoy complete protection for the entire period but, at the same time it does not provide for enabling the said applicant to enjoy an overall monopoly for any 'extended' period beyond the expiry of the mandatory recognized life of a patent. It is in view of the aforesaid that there is no provision for extension of a stipulated life of a patent as it becomes the part of the public domain after its expiry.

22. The contention of the petitioner that some leeway should be granted to the applicant such as the petitioner herein in the form of a remedy beyond the statutory period of thirty-one months holds no merit on two accounts, firstly since instead of thirty months, one extra month has already been granted for filing the National Phase application in India and secondly, such a benefit cannot be extended to any applicant at the very first/ initial stage, i.e., at the time of filing a new application in India. In our view, such a benefit cannot be extended at the initial stages of filing a new application to a new entrant/ applicant in India, as such.

23. Hence to preserve the purpose or/and object of limitation itself, the petitioner had to initiate requisite steps for initiation of National Phase application, as no provision is present for a leeway in a primary/initiating stage but, the same does find a mention under Rule 80 of Patent Rules as it is the subsequent stage whence, the delay can be condoned as seen under Rule 6(5) of Patent Rules (which have not been reproduced hereinabove since they are not requisite for adjudication of present issues).

24. Furthermore, and in any event, in terms of Rule 49(b) of PCT Regulations, any request for seeking reinstatement of rights after failure to perform the acts under Article 22 of PCT Rules are to be submitted at the designated Office within the time period prescribed therein, i.e. within two months of the date of removal of the cause of failure to meet the applicable time period under Article 22 of PCT Rules or within twelve months from the date of expiration of the applicable time period therein or whichever expires first. Not only that, as per Rule 49(f) of PCT Regulations, if for any reason, any of the other clauses of the said Rule 49(1) to (5) of PCT Regulations are not compatible with the National Law applied by the designated Office, those clause(s) shall not apply in respect of that designated Office for as long as they continue not to be compatible with that PCT, provided that the said Office informs the International Bureau accordingly by 01.01.2003. Admittedly, India has already initiated the requisite steps under Rule 49(f) of PCT Regulations.

25. In view thereof, both PCT Rules and the PCT Regulations recognize, understand, and permit the changes for any designated State/ Office and as long as they are not incompatible or in disagreement with them, according to us, there is and cannot be anything wrong in it.

26. Interestingly, as borne out from what has been enumerated in Section 160 of the Patent Act, all rules framed under Section 159 of the said Act have to be placed before both Houses of Parliament. In present case, both the Patent Act and the Patent Rules were enacted and the subsequent modifications therein have been carried out after following procedures set out in Section 160 of Patent Act. Similarly, the time limit prescribed under Rule 20(4) of Patent Rules is in consonance with Section 21 of the said Act.

27. The same issue came for consideration before a learned Single Judge of this Court in the case of Nippon Steel (Supra) wherein it has been observed as under:

“25. There is a logic to the time limits set out under the Act. The scheme of the Act and the Rules require time-bound steps to be taken by applicants for grant of patent at various stages. provisions of the Act and the Rules have to expressly reflect the legislative intent to permit relaxation of time limits, absent which such relaxation cannot be ‘read into’ provisions by a High Court exercising powers under Article 226 of the Constitution. In other words, it is not possible for this Court to accept the submission of the learned Senior counsel for the Petitioner that the time-limits under Section 11-B(1) of the Act read with Rule 24-B of the Rules, notwithstanding Section 11-B(4) of the Act, are merely 'directory' and not mandatory. ”

28. Lastly, the contention of the petitioner that the use of the word “shall” in Rule 22 of Patent Rules has to be read as “may” is in total contravention of the Patent Act and the Patent Rules in view of the surrounding circumstances including provisions of PCT Rules and PCT Regulations. On one hand, otherwise, the word “shall” in the common parlance being synonymous with words such as ‘must’, ‘ought’ and ‘should’ is always meant to mean more in the ‘constructive’ sense. Similarly, a literal meaning of the word “shall” is meant to connote something which is positive in all sense. Generally, the use of the word “shall” signifies which ‘ought to be’ or ‘has to be’ and which is ‘mandatory’. In legal parlance also, unless and until it is conveyed or understood otherwise, the word “shall” is meant to denote something which mandatorily is in the nature of a ‘dictum’ for all purposes. Conversely on the other hand, the word “may” in common parlance being synonymous with words like ‘can’, ‘permit’ and ‘possibility’ is more in the semi-constructive sense. A literal meaning of the word “may” is meant to connote something which is fluid and is dependent. Generally, the use of the word “may” signifies ‘there can be’ or ‘there might be’ and that which is ‘directory’. The word “may” in the common parlance is meant to denote ‘can’, i.e., less than definitive. In legal parlance also, unless and until it is stated otherwise, the word “may” denotes something which is discretionary for all purposes. According to us, in the present case, the word “shall” has to be given a literal meaning as it cannot be read down as “may”.

29. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of *State of Haryana vs. Raghubir Dayal*¹⁷ while interpreting the word "shall" has observed as under: -

"5. The use of the word 'shall' is ordinarily mandatory but it is sometimes not so interpreted if the scope of the enactment, on consequences to flow from such construction would not so demand. Normally, the word 'shall' prima facie ought to be considered mandatory but it is the function of the court to ascertain the real intention of the legislature by a careful examination of the whole scope of the statute, the purpose it seeks to serve and the consequences that would flow from the construction to be placed thereon. The word 'shall', therefore, ought to be construed not according to the language with which it is clothed but in the context in which it is used and the purpose it seeks to serve. The meaning has to be ascribed to the word 'shall' as mandatory or as directory, accordingly. Equally, it is settled law that when a statute is passed for the purpose of enabling the doing of something and prescribes the formalities which are to be attended for the purpose, those prescribed formalities which are essential to the validity of such thing, would be mandatory. However, if by holding them to be mandatory, serious general inconvenience is caused to innocent persons or general public, without very much furthering the object of the Act, the same would be construed as directory.

7. Therefore, the word 'shall' used in Section 4(1) should be construed to be mandatory because the requirement of Section 4(1) of the publication of the notification in the Gazette followed by their publication in the newspapers perhaps in some cases may not meet the needed purpose of notice to the owner or person claiming interest in the land proposed to be acquired. For instance, in rural areas most agriculturists may not read even the vernacular newspapers. Their fields are their world and work therein is their breadwinner. They would come to know only if the substance of the notification is published (announced) in the village by beat of drum. Therefore, publication of the substance of the notification of Section 4(1) and in the locality is mandatory but it is not the requirement of the law that it be done simultaneously with the publication in the Gazette or newspapers. Though there is a time gap of more than six months between the date of the notification under Section 4(1) in the State Gazette and the date of the publication of the substance of the notification in the locality, the delay by itself does not render the notification under Section 4(1) published in the State Gazette, invalid.”

30. Keeping in mind the above position, factual and legal, the use of the word “shall” in Rule 22 of the Patent Rules is meaning ‘mandatory’ instead of ‘directory’. As a necessary corollary this Court, finds able support in case of Sharif-ud-din (Supra) wherein it has been observed as under: -

“ The difference between a mandatory rule and a directory rule is that while the former must be strictly observed, in the case of the latter substantial compliance may be sufficient to achieve the object regarding which the rule is enacted. Certain broad propositions which can be deduced from several decisions of courts regarding the rules of construction that should be followed in determining whether a provision of law is directory or mandatory may be summarised thus: The fact that the statute uses the word “shall” while laying down a duty is not conclusive on the question whether it is a mandatory or directory provision. In order to find out the true character of the legislation, the court has to ascertain the object which provision of law in question has to subserve and its design and the context in which it is enacted. If the object of a law is to be defeated by non-compliance with it, it has to be regarded as mandatory. But when a provision of law relates to the performance of any public duty and the invalidation of any act done in disregard of that provision causes serious prejudice to those for whose benefit it is enacted and at the same time who have no control over the performance of the duty, such provision should be treated as a directory one. Where, however, a provision of law prescribes that a certain act has to be done in a particular manner by a person in order to acquire a right and it is coupled with another provision which confers an immunity on another when such act is not done in that manner, the former has to be regarded as a mandatory one. A procedural rule ordinarily should not be construed as mandatory if the defect in the act done in pursuance of it can be cured by permitting appropriate rectification to be carried out at a subsequent stage unless by according such permission to rectify the error later on, another rule would be contravened. Whenever a statute prescribes that a particular act is to be done in a particular manner and also lays down that failure to comply with the said requirement leads to a specific consequence, it would be difficult to hold that the requirement is not mandatory and the specified consequence should not follow”

31. The contention of learned counsel for petitioner that provisions of extension for filing a National Phase application under patent law is available to an applicant in other countries barring India and thus should be made available/adopted in India holds no water due to the fact that admittedly, Rule 49 of PCT Regulations permits each Nation to choose and make the requisite changes as per the prevailing conditions. India has done so, giving due weightage to PCT Rules and PCT Regulations so there is nothing with which any fault can be found or which would require any change.

32. Though the main shape and form of the patent law in India was taken from the patent law in England, however, with time, numerous changes have been brought. There are some inventions for which a patent can or cannot be granted in India and situation may not be the same in other countries. In any event, the patent laws of India are made best suited to the laws of this land, which cannot be similar in all aspects to the laws of the other lands (countries). Having said that, it should not be inferred from the above that the patent laws of India are not in conformity with the provisions of Patent Laws of the World. At best, the steps involved and the criteria laid down therein maybe be inferred to be different.

33. We wish to note that, though the petitioner has cited plethora of judgments, few of which are specified hereinabove, we are afraid they do not and in fact, cannot come to the aid of the petitioner as they have no application to the facts of the present case. In fact, few of those judgments strengthen the findings of this Court that the provision of Rule 22 of Patent

Rules is not against the provisions of Patent Act and is rather in consonance with provisions of the said Act. In view of the aforesaid, it is quite abundantly clear that Rule 22 of Patent Rules is not only in consonance with the object and reasonings of the Patent Act but also with the PCT Rules and PCT Regulations and there are no Pari Materia provisions in the PCT Rules or the PCT regulation even otherwise. Further, the contention of the petitioner that it was not provided with an opportunity of hearing and thus, there was a violation of principles of natural justice holds no water, since it was the petitioner who failed to comply with the statutory provisions of the Patent Act and Patent Rules to file the application within the stipulated time. Having not done so, by operation of law, there was no occasion for the respondents to give any hearing and /or reason as it was in common knowledge of all applicants like the petitioner herein that as there was no application before the Controller (IPO) of any kind, therefore there was no occasion of it being heard.

34. The above leaves little doubt for us to conclude that the reliefs sought in present writ petition cannot be granted as it does not evoke any confidence. Suffice to say, an applicant like the petitioner is bound by the Statute and the laws of the land. Having failed to file the requisite application within time with the requisite number, documents, and fees in compliance of the Patent Act, the petitioner is seeking to make a belated challenge. In fact, the petitioner is trying to flog a dead horse. If we agree with the said contention of the petitioner then the same will tantamount to opening a pandoras box and it will go against the very purpose of the PCT Rules, the PCT Regulations, The Patents Act, 1970 and The Patent Rules.

35. The Patents Act and the Patent Rules give due weightage/ acknowledgement to all the applications and incorporates all the checks and balances for a patent to be secured for best possible period and whereby the applicant is granted a limited monopoly of twenty years, more so, whence there is no provision of renewal of the same patent beyond twenty years.

36. Having come to the aforesaid conclusion, according to us, there is no violation of any international treaty. Thus, reliance placed upon Commissioner of Customs (supra) by learned counsel for petitioner is misconceived. Moreover, Rule 22 of Patent Rules is not ultra-vires in view of Section 138 of Patent Act, and is not beyond the purview of Section 159 of Patent Act. Further, the same does not involve any sub-delegation and the existing situation in India is neither short of, nor in contradiction with the international position/PCT.

37. The petitioner, under the garb of present writ petition is trying to claim pardon for not adhering to the stipulated timeline, which according to us, could not have been the intention of the legislature. The petitioner cannot be permitted to try and put the cart before the horse. A seasoned player like petitioner is well aware that a mistake done which cannot be undone by statute, certainly cannot sought to be undone, much less rectified, by virtue of an order of a Court of Law as the same being not permissible is all canons of justice. This Court cannot be privy to something which is against the worldwide convention, since the inception of recognition of a patent and the grant thereof. In fact, present writ petition is more of a knee jerk reaction, moreover, whence patent laws of India are on a different pedestal with regards to other Nations. Even otherwise, they do not need a change, as since the very inception, the various provisions of the Patent Act, the Patent Rules, the PCT Rules and PCT Regulations have always been in synchronization with each other.

38. Accordingly, in view of the aforesaid factual position and settled law, present petition is dismissed, leaving parties to bear their own costs.
