

IN THE HIGH COURT OF PUNJAB AND HARYANA
AT CHANDIGARH

(102+230)

CR No. 6440 of 2016 (O&M)

Date of Decision : 01.03.2023

Ashima Garg

...Petitioner

Versus

Anshul Gupta

...Respondent

CORAM: HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE HARSIMRAN SINGH SETHI

Present: Petitioner in person with Ms. Sonia G. Singh, Advocate.

Mr. Ashok Gupta, Advocate for the respondent.

Harsimran Singh Sethi J. (Oral)

It is conceded between the parties that respondent has already got a decree of divorce and in the present civil revision petition, the order challenged is of non-grant of maintenance under Section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act.

Learned counsel for the petitioner, on instructions from the petitioner, who herself is also present in court, submits that she does not intend to pursue the present remedy any further but her only grievance is that certain observations made by the Court in the impugned order will prejudice to her in the future as she had never intended to suppress any information from the Hon'ble Court rather, no information was sought for by the court.

In view of the above, the present civil revision petition is disposed of having been not pressed with the observation that nothing said in the impugned order will be treated as aspersion being caused on any individual.

Pending applications, if any, also stand disposed of as not pressed, at this stage.

CM-5785-CII-2022 and CM- 13850-CII-2022

As the civil revision petition has been disposed of as not pressed, the present applications also stand disposed of as not pressed, at this stage.
