IN THE HIGH COURT OF PUNJAB AND HARYANA
AT CHANDIGARH

205

CRM-M-47591-2023

Date of Decision : December 15, 2023

MANDEEP SINGH SAINI ALIAS MANU ALIAS SACHE PATSHAH
.....Petitioner

VERSUS

STATE OF PUNJAB
.....Respondent

CORAM: HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE KULDEEP TIWARI

Present : Mr. Piyush Khanna, Advocate for the petitioner.

Mr. Karunesh Kaushal, AAG, Punjab.

KULDEEP TIWARI. J.(Oral)

1. Through the instant petition, the petitioner craves for indulgence of this Court for his being enlarged on regular bail, in case FIR No.160 dated 09.05.2023, under Sections 15, 18, 20, 21, 22/61/85 of the NDPS Act, registered at P.S. City, District Hoshiarpur.

2. On 31.10.2023, the following order was passed by this Court:-

“Learned counsel for the petitioner, while placing reliance on the order passed by the Co-ordinate Bench, whereby, the two co-accused have been granted the benefit of anticipatory bail, submits that petitioner is entitled for regular bail.

On instructions from ASI Gagan Singh, learned State counsel submits that the petitioner is involved in five other cases of NDPS. He further submits that investigation is at very initial stage and he is waiting for the FSL report and requests for an adjournment, enabling him to file reply by way of affidavit of the competent authority disclosing therein the complete details of antecedents, stage of trial and outcome of the FSL report.

Request is allowed.

Status report by way of affidavit be filed on or before the next date of hearing. List on 15.12.2023.”

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE PETITIONER

3. As per the prosecution, the allegations against the petitioner are that, when the police party was on patrolling then the informer informed that the accused Pushpinder Singh alias Tinku, Varun Kumar, Arun Kumar alias Moni, Kurban Mattu alias Telu, Deepak Kumar alias Deepu, Sanjeev Kumar alias Sanju, Ravi Shankar alias Ravi, Mandeep Singh Saini alias Manu (present petitioner) and Gagandeep Singh, are doing the business of selling narcotic drugs and in case the raid is conducted then poppy/ opium/smack/heroin/intoxicant power/intoxicated medicines can be recovered.

SUBMISSIONS OF LEARNED COUNSEL FOR THE PETITIONER

4. The learned counsel for the petitioner, submits that in the instant matter, the petitioner was arrested on dated 29.05.2023, and during the custody he led the policy party as per his disclosure statement and got recovered 40 grams of intoxicant powder.

Even today, it is not ascertained, that what type of contraband was recovered from the present petitioner, as the FSL report is still awaited.

The final report report qua the petitioner has already been filed way back on dated 17.10.2023, but charges could not be framed because of want of the FSL report.

Learned counsel for the petitioner relies upon the orders dated 26.07.2023 (Annexure P-3 collectively), whereby, Pushpinder Kumar alias Pushpinder Singh alias Tinku was granted the relief of anticipatory bail, whereas benefit of anticipatory bail granted to Deepak has been made absolute vide order of even date.

Learned counsel further submits that the custody certificate reveals that the petitioner has already suffered incarceration of 5 months and 16 days. Though it is further revealed that the petitioner is involved in 5 more cases and in these cases he is on bail.

SUBMISSIONS OF THE LEARNED STATE COUNSEL

5. On the other hand, learned State counsel on instructions from ASI Josh Singh, submits that the petitioner is involved in 5 other criminal cases of a similar nature, as per the custody certificate, placed on record by him. It also reveals that the petitioner has undergone only 5 months and 16 days of incarceration and he strenuously opposes the bail application.

ANALYSIS

6. “Bail is the Rule and Jail is an Exception”. This basic principle of criminal jurisprudence was laid down by the Hon’ble Supreme Court, way back in 1978, in its landmark judgment titled “State of Rajasthan V. Balchand alias Baliay”, 1977 AIR 2447, 1978 SCR (1) 535. This principle finds its roots in one of the most distinguished fundamental rights, as enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution of India. Though the underlying objective behind detention of a person is to ensure easy availability of an accused for trial, without any inconvenience, however, in case the presence of an accused can be secured otherwise, then detention is not compulsory.

7. The right to a speedy trial is one of the rights of a detained person. However, while deciding application for regular bail, the Courts shall also take into consideration the fundamental precept of criminal jurisprudence, which is “the presumption of innocence”, besides the gravity of offence(s) involved.

8. In “Nikesh Tarachand Shah V. Union of India”, (2018) 11 SCC 1, the Hon’ble Supreme Court has recorded the following:-

“14. In Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia v. State of Punjab, (1980) 2 SCC 565 at 586-588, the purpose of granting bail is set out with great felicity as follows:-

“27. It is not necessary to refer to decisions which deal with the right to ordinary bail because that right does not furnish an exact parallel to the right to anticipatory bail. It is, however, interesting that as long back as in 1924 it was held by the High Court of Calcutta in Nagendra v. King-Emperor the object of bail is to secure the attendance of the accused at the trial, that the proper test to be applied in the solution of the question whether bail should be granted or refused is whether it is probable that the party will appear to take his trial and that it is indisputable that bail is not to be withheld as a punishment. In two other cases which, significantly, are the ‘Meerut Conspiracy cases’ observations are to be found regarding the right to bail which deserve a special mention. In K.N. Joglekar v. Emperor [AIR 1931 All 504 : 33 Cri LJ 94] it was observed, while dealing with Section 498 which corresponds to the present Section 439 of the Code, that it conferred upon the Sessions Judge or the High Court wide powers to grant bail which were not handicapped by the restrictions in the preceding Section 497 which corresponds to the present Section 437. It was observed by the court that there was no hard and fast rule and no inflexible principle governing the exercise of the discretion conferred by Section 498 and that the only principle which was established was that the discretion should be exercised judiciously. In Emperor v. Hutchinson [AIR 1931 All 356, 358 : 32 Cri LJ 1271] it was said that it was very unwise to make an attempt to lay down any particular rules which will bind the High Court, having regard to the fact that the legislature itself left the discretion of the court unfettered. According to the High Court, the variety of cases that may arise from time to time cannot be safely classified and it is dangerous to make an attempt to classify the cases and to say that in particular classes a bail may be granted but not in other classes. It was observed that the principle to be deduced from the various sections in the Criminal Procedure Code was that grant of bail is the rule and refusal is the exception. An accused person who enjoys freedom is in a much better position to look after his case and to properly defend himself than if he were in custody. As a presumably innocent person he is therefore entitled to freedom and every opportunity to look after his own case. A presumably innocent person must have his freedom to enable him to establish his innocence.

28. Coming nearer home, it was observed by Krishna Iyer, J., in Gudikanti Narasimhulu v. Public Prosecutor [(1978) 1 SCC 240 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 115] that: (SCC p. 242, para 1)

“... the issue of bail is one of liberty, justice, public safety and burden of the public treasury, all of which insist that a developed jurisprudence of bail is integral to a socially sensitized judicial process. . . . After all, personal liberty of an accused or convict is fundamental, suffering lawful eclipse only in terms of procedure established by law.

The last four words of Article 21 are the life of that human right.”

29. In Gurcharan Singh v. State (Delhi Administration) [(1978) 1 SCC 118 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 41] it was observed by Goswami, J., who spoke for the court, that: (SCC p. 129, para 29)

“There cannot be an inexorable formula in the matter of granting bail. The facts and circumstances of each case will govern the exercise of judicial discretion in granting or cancelling bail.”

30. In AMERICAN JURISPRUDENCE (2d, Volume 8, p. 806, para 39), it is stated:

“Where the granting of bail lies within the discretion of the court, the granting or denial is regulated, to a large extent, by the facts and circumstances of each particular case. Since the object of the detention or imprisonment of the accused is to secure his appearance and submission to the jurisdiction and the judgment of the court, the primary inquiry is whether a recognizance or bond would effect that end.”

It is thus clear that the question whether to grant bail or not depends for its answer upon a variety of circumstances, the cumulative effect of which must enter into the judicial verdict. Any one single circumstance cannot be treated as of universal validity or as necessarily justifying the grant or refusal of bail.”

9. Also, in Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre v. State of Maharashtra, Criminal Appeal No.2271 of 2010, the Hon’ble Supreme Court has insisted upon striking a perfect balance of sanctity of an individual’s liberty as well as the interest of the society, in grant or refusing bail. The relevant extract of the judgment (supra) is reproduced hereinafter:-

3. The society has a vital interest in grant or refusal of bail because every criminal offence is the offence against the State. The order granting or refusing bail must reflect perfect balance between the conflicting interests, namely, sanctity of individual liberty and the interest of the society. The law of bails dovetails two conflicting interests namely, on the one hand, the requirements of shielding the society from the hazards of those committing crimes and potentiality of repeating the same crime while on bail and on the other hand absolute adherence of the fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence regarding presumption of innocence of an accused until he is found guilty and the sanctity of individual liberty.

10. This Court has examined the instant petition on the touchstone of the hereinabove extracted settled and legal principle(s) of law and is of the considered opinion that the instant petition is amenable for being allowed.

FINAL ORDER

11. Considering the above circumstances and the fact that the other co-accused have already been granted the concession of anticipatory bail and the stage of the trial which is at a very initial stage, this Court deems it appropriate to grant the concession of regular bail to the petitioner. Therefore, without commenting upon the merits and circumstances of the present case, the present petition is allowed. The petitioner is ordered to be released on bail on furnishing of bail bond and surety bond to the satisfaction of concerned Chief Judicial Magistrate/trial Court/Duty Magistrate.

12. However, it is clarified that if in future, the petitioner is found indulging in commission of similar offences in future, as are involved herein, the respondent-State shall be at liberty to make an appropriate application seeking cancellation of regular bail, as granted by this Court. Moreover, anything observed here-in-above shall have no effect on the merits of the trial and is meant for deciding the present petition only.
