In the present petitions, the grievance being raised by the petitioners is that the respondents had issued an advertisement dated 16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1) for filling up the posts of Steno Typist, for which posts, the petitioners had competed and ultimately the respondents have declared the result for the same but all the said advertised posts could not be filled up and rather than giving the opportunity to the candidates, who had already competed in pursuance to the advertisement dated 16.10.2014

Connected cases

(Annexure P/1), the respondents have issued another advertisement on 30.12.2015 (Annexure P/7) and made selection to the said posts of Steno Typists. The grievance of the petitioners is that rather than issuing a fresh advertisement dated 30.12.2015, the petitioners who had already competed and were waiting for appointment, should have been appointed against the vacant posts.

Upon notice of motion, the respondents have filed reply wherein, it has been stated that no waiting list was prepared in pursuance to the advertisement dated 16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1) and that is why, posts which remained vacant and other post of Steno Typist which now became available on some other accounts were advertised vide fresh advertisement dated 30.12.2015 (Annexure P/7) and the same have already been filled up hence, no grievance can be raised by the petitioners.

I have heard learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record with their able assistance.

The only question which arises for consideration of this Court is whether once, there was no waiting list prepared by the respondents, can the petitioners claim that they should have appointed in pursuance to advertisement dated 16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1) rather than issuing advertisement qua the left over posts along with other posts, which became available in the meantime to be filled up by issuing fresh advertisement dated 30.12.2015 (Annexure P/7).

The said question came up for consideration before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in Civil Appeal No.3062-2023 titled as State of Karnataka vs. Smt. Bharathi S., decided on 19.05.2023 wherein, it has been held that duty to fill up the vacancy from the waiting list can only arise on the basis of the mandatory rules and in the absence of any such mandate, the decision to fill up all the vacancies from the waiting list is left to the wisdom of the State. Relevant paragraph of the judgment is as under:-

“11. The position that emerges from the above decisions is that the duty to fill up vacancies from the Additional List (waiting list) can arise only on the basis of a mandatory rule. In the absence of such a mandate, the decision to fill all the vacancies from the Additional List, is left to the wisdom of the State. We will however add that State cannot act arbitrarily and its action will be subject to judicial review.”

In the present case, after the publication of the result in pursuance to the advertisement dated 16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1), the State in its wisdom decided to advertise the posts once again as number of posts had become available to be advertised afresh and the left over posts of the advertisement dated 16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1) were also included in the same.

Once, the State in its wisdom had taken a conscience decision to advertise the posts again and same were advertised and have already been filled up, no question for the grant of benefit so as to appoint the petitioners on the said post arises.

Further, no rule has been cited before this Court that there was a mandate upon the respondents to fill up all the posts from the first/initial advertisement even if there is no waiting list prepared. In the absence of any mandate and any waiting list issued by the respondents in pursuance to the advertisement dated 16.10.2014, the petitioners cannot claim benefit of appointment merely on the ground that they participated in pursuance to advertisement dated 16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1).

Further, nothing stopped the petitioners to compete for the post which were advertised vide advertisement dated 30.12.2015 (Annexure P/7) but petitioners chose not to compete for the same. Once, the petitioners chose not to compete for the posts, which were left over in pursuance to advertisement dated 16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1) and were made part of advertisement dated 30.12.2015 (Annexure P/7) and appointment have already been made, no ground to disturb the appointment of the candidates, who have competed and selected in pursuance to advertisement dated 30.12.2015 (Annexure P/7) is made out.

Further, learned counsel for the petitioners have not been able to dispute that in the initial merit list, all the candidates, who were selected against the posts advertised, were higher in merit than the petitioners. The petitioners could not get selected in the initial selection and there was no waiting list. The petitioners are only claiming that as certain candidates from the initial merit list did not join, the petitioners should be given appointment against the said post whereas, the respondents rather than issuing a waiting list decided to advertised the posts afresh.

Once, the petitioners failed to make it to the select list keeping in view the number of posts advertised as per the advertisement dated 16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1) and there was no waiting list, the petitioners cannot claim the benefit of appointment. Only a candidate who is put on waiting list can claim certain benefit, which is missing in the present case as the respondents did not issue any waiting list after issuance of select list keeping in view the posts advertised in pursuance to advertisement dated

CWP-4475-2016 (O&M) & -6-
Connected cases

16.10.2014 (Annexure P/1) hence, the petitioners cannot raise any grievance qua their non-selection or to grant them benefit of appointment against the posts, which remained vacant due to non-joining of the candidates, which were subsequently advertised by the respondents and the selection have already been made.

Keeping in view the facts and circumstances recorded hereinabove, no ground for interference by this Court is made out and all the writ petitions are accordingly dismissed.

Civil miscellaneous application pending, if any, is also disposed of.
