

2024:PHHC:118508

IN THE HIGH COURT OF PUNJAB AND HARYANA
AT CHANDIGARH

265 CRM M-38576 of 2024
Date of Decision: 09.09.2024

- (1) Roshan Palaha ...Petitioner
Versus
State of Haryana and another ... Respondents
CRM M-38585-2024
- (2) Rahul Jain ...Petitioner
Versus
State of Haryana and another ... Respondents

CORAM : HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE N.S.SHEKHAWAT

Present : Mr. Puneet Bali, Sr. Advocate, with Mr. Aman Sareen, Mr. Santosh Kumar,
Mr. Harmeet Singh Bhasin and Mr. Abhishek Sharma, Advocates for the petitioner in CRM M-38576 of 2024.

Mr. Aman Pal, Advocate for the petitioner in CRM M-38585 of 2024.

Mr. Karan Kaushal, Advocate, for the complainant.
Respondent No.2-Ms. Pinki in person.

Mr. Praveen Bhadu, AAG, Haryana.

N.S.SHEKHAWAT, J. (Oral)

1. This order shall dispose off two petitions, i.e., CRM M-38576-2024 titled as “Rohan Palaha Vs. State of Haryana and another” and CRM M-38585-2024 titled as “Rahul Jain Vs.
State of Haryana and another”, whereby, the petitioners in both the petitions had prayed for quashing of the FIR bearing No. 0100 dated 10.04.2024 under Sections 384/419 of the Indian Penal Code and Section 67 of the Information Technology Act (charge sheet presented under Sections 384/419/120-B IPC and Sections 66-C and 67 of IT Act, 2008 amended) registered at Police Station Cyber West Gurgaon (Annexure P-1) and all subsequent proceedings emanating out of the said FIR.

2. In the present case, initially, the petitioners had prayed for quashing of the FIR (Annexure P-1) on merits. However, during the Court proceedings, Mr. Karan Kaushal, Advocate, has appeared on behalf of respondent No. 2 and has also placed on record a copy of the affidavit dated 09.09.2024 as well as power of attorney on behalf of respondent No. 2. The affidavit of respondent No. 2 as well as power of attorney are taken on record.

3. Apart from that, the respondent No. 2 has also appeared in person and has been duly identified by her counsel. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent No. 2 submits that she was the complainant in the present case and she had no grouse or grudges against the petitioners in these two cases. It has been further mentioned in the affidavit that she has no objection, if the present petition is allowed and the FIR (Annexure P-1) and all subsequent proceedings arising therefrom are ordered to be quashed by this Court.

4. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent No. 2 also submits that the parties had entered into a compromise in the present case and the FIR (Annexure P-1) may be quashed by this Court.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record carefully.

6. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of India has held in the matter of "Narinder Singh Vs. State of Punjab" as follows:-

" 31. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we sum up and lay down the following principles by which the High Court would be guided in giving adequate treatment to the settlement between the parties and exercising its power under section 482 of the Code while accepting the settlement and quashing the proceedings or refusing to accept the settlement with direction to continue with the criminal proceedings :

(I) Power conferred under section 482 of the Code is to be distinguished from the power which lies in the Court to compound the offences under Section 320 of the Code. No doubt, under section 482 of the Code, the High Court has inherent power to quash the criminal proceedings even in those cases which are not compoundable, where the parties have settled the matter between themselves. However, this power is to be exercised sparingly and with caution.

(II) When the parties have reached the settlement and on that basis petition for quashing the criminal proceedings is filed, the guiding factor in such cases would be to secure :

(i) ends of justice, or

(ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court. While exercising the power the High Court is to form an opinion on either of the aforesaid two objectives.

(III) Such a power is not be exercised in those prosecutions which involve heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, for offences alleged to have been committed under special statute like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by Public Servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender.

(IV) On the other, those criminal cases having overwhelmingly and pre-dominantly civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes should be quashed when the parties have resolved their entire disputes among themselves.

(V) While exercising its powers, the High Court is to examine as to whether the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal cases would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal cases.

(VI) Offences under Section 307 I.P.C. would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore is to be generally treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 I.P.C. in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of Section 307 I.P.C. is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to proving the charge under Section 307 I.P.C. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delegate parts of the body, nature of weapons used etc. Medical report in respect of injuries suffered by the victim can generally be the guiding factor. On the basis of this prima facie analysis, the High Court can examine as to whether there is a strong possibility of conviction or the chances of conviction are remote and bleak. In the former case it can refuse to accept the settlement and quash the criminal proceedings whereas in the later case it would be permissible for the High Court to accept the plea compounding the offence based on complete settlement between the parties. At this stage, the Court can also be swayed by the fact that the settlement between the parties is going to result in harmony between them which may improve their future relationship.

(VII) While deciding whether to exercise its power under section 482 of the Code or not, timings of settlement play a crucial role. Those cases where the settlement is arrived at immediately after the alleged commission of offence and the matter is still under investigation, the High Court may be liberal in accepting the settlement to quash the criminal proceedings/investigation. It is because of the reason that at this stage the investigation is still on and even the charge sheet has not been filed. Likewise, those cases where the charge is framed but the evidence is yet to start or the evidence is still at infancy stage, the High Court can show benevolence in exercising its powers favourably, but after prima facie assessment of the circumstances/material mentioned above. On the other hand, where the prosecution evidence is almost complete or after the conclusion of the evidence the matter is at the stage of argument, normally the High Court should refrain from exercising its power under section 482 of the Code, as in such cases the trial court would be in a position to decide the case finally on merits and to come a conclusion as to whether the offence under Section 307 I.P.C. is committed or not. Similarly, in those cases where the conviction is already recorded by the trial court and the matter is at the appellate stage before the High Court, mere compromise between the parties would not be a ground to accept the same resulting in acquittal of the offender who has already been convicted by the trial court. Here charge is proved under Section 307 I.P.C. and conviction is already recorded of a heinous crime and, therefore, there is no question of sparing a convict found guilty of such a crime.”

7. While considering the issue regarding quashing of the FIR under Section 307 of IPC on the basis of compromise, the Hon’ble Supreme Court held in the matter of “State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Laxmi Narayan; 2019 AIR (SC) 1296 as follows:-

“13. Considering the law on the point and the other decisions of this Court on the point, referred to hereinabove, it is observed and held as under:

i) that the power conferred under section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings for the non-compoundable offences under Section 320 of the Code can be exercised having overwhelmingly and predominantly the civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes and when the parties have resolved the entire dispute amongst themselves;

ii) such power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involved heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society;

iii) similarly, such power is not to be exercised for the offences under the special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender;

iv) offences under section 307 IPC and the Arms Act etc. would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore are to be treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone, and therefore, the criminal proceedings for the offence under section 307 IPC and/or the Arms Act etc. which have a serious impact on the society cannot be quashed in exercise of powers under section 482 of the Code, on the ground that the parties have resolved their entire dispute amongst themselves. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of section 307 IPC in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of section 307 IPC is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to framing the charge under section 307 IPC. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delegate parts of the body, nature of weapons used etc. However, such an exercise by the High Court would be permissible only after the evidence is collected after investigation and the charge sheet is filed/charge is framed and/or during the trial. Such exercise is not permissible when the matter is still under investigation. Therefore, the ultimate conclusion in paragraphs 29.6 and 29.7 of the decision of this Court in the case of Narinder Singh (supra) should be read harmoniously and to be read as a whole and in the circumstances stated hereinabove;

v) while exercising the power under section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings in respect of non-compoundable offences, which are private in nature and do not have a serious impart on society, on the ground that there is a settlement/compromise between the victim and the offender, the High Court is required to consider the antecedents of the accused; the conduct of the accused, namely, whether the accused was absconding and why he was absconding, how he had managed with the complainant to enter into a compromise etc.”

8. In the present case also, the parties have amicably resolved all their disputes. Still further, it is apparent from the allegations levelled in the FIR that no heinous or serious offences are involved in the present case. In fact, the dispute appears to be private in nature and does not have serious impact on the society.

Consequently, it would be appropriate for this Court to exercise the powers under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure to quash the criminal proceedings as there is compromise between the victim and the offender. Moreover, both the parties are highly educated and belong to reputed families. Even, the petitioners have no criminal antecedents and were never involved in any criminal activity.

9. Taking into consideration the above referred pronouncements and taking into consideration the above referred facts, this Court is of the considered opinion that the continuation of the proceedings in the present case would be an abuse of the process of Court.

10. As a consequence, the present petition is accepted and FIR bearing No. 0100 dated 10.04.2024 under Sections 384/419 of the Indian Penal Code and Section 67 of the Information Technology Act (charge sheet presented under Sections 384/419/120-B IPC and Sections 66-C and 67 of IT Act, 2008 amended) registered at Police Station Cyber West Gurgaon (Annexure P-1) and all the subsequent proceedings arising therefrom are quashed qua the present petitioners.

09.09.2024
amit rana

(N.S.SHEKHAWAT)
JUDGE

Whether reasoned/speaking : Yes/No
Whether reportable : Yes/No