VERSUS

STATE OF HARYANA

.....Respondent

CORAM: HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE KULDEEP TIWARI

Present : Mr. Aditya Sanghi, Advocate, for the petitioner.

Mr.Abhinash Jain, DAG, Haryana.

KULDEEP TIWARI. J.(Oral)
CRM-4987-2024

1. The application is allowed as prayed subject to all just exceptions and the documents are taken on record as Annexures P-7 & P-8.

CRM-M-65380-2023

2. Through the instant petition, the petitioner craves for of this Court for his being enlarged on regular bail, in case FIR No.308, dated 11.08.2023, under Section 148, 149, 323, 324, 326 and 506 of the IPC, registered at Police Station City, Thanesar, District Kurukshetra.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE PETITIONER

3. The case of the prosecution agency was set into motion on a complaint moved by Bunty, that on dated 10.08.2023, wherein, he alleged that his cousin-Tushar has come to meet him in his lab, where the complainant was working as lab technician, with one namely Anuj. The complainant and Anuj had gone to a confectionery shop in Mohan Nagar, to purchase the cold drink at about 10:30 p.m, and when they were coming out of the said shop, present petitioner-Aman, carrying a knife in his hand, and Manu Pandit, carrying a gandasi in his hand, Aakash, Chirag and Amli along-with 7-8 other unknown persons came there carrying weapons in their hands. Aman Pandit gave a knife blow on the right side of the waist, and left side of the waist of the complainant, whereas Mannu Pandit gave a gandasi blow on the left arm of the complainant, and when Anuj and Tushar tried to rescue the complainant, Aman Pandit (present petitioner) inflicted injury towards the left side of Tushar. Several persons gathered at the spot, and rescued the complainant party, from the clutches of the accused persons, and while going away, the accused persons threatened the complainant with death if he entered into a dispute with them again.

4. During investigation it is transpired that three stab wound injury with knife suffered by complainant-Bunty, is attributed to the present petitioner, and he has also inflicted stab wound to Tushar (cousin of the complainant), which is reported to be grievous in nature.

SUBMISSIONS OF THE LEARNED COUNSEL FOR THE PETITIONER

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that though the recovery of knife is effected from the present petitioner, however, his presence as well as the veracity of the allegations, as levelled against the petitioner is yet to be established by the prosecution by leading evidence before the learned trial Court concerned.

6. He further submits that all the co-accused who were arrested by the prosecution agency, have been admitted to the regular bail by the learned Courts below and only the petitioner is now behind the bars.

7. He also submits that the petitioner has suffered the incarceration of approximately 5 months, and he has clean antecedents, however, earlier two cases in which he was involved, he has earned acquittal in those.

SUBMISSIONS OF THE LEARNED STATE COUNSEL

8. Per contra, the learned State counsel vociferously opposed the asked for relief on the ground that the petitioner is the main accused, who has caused three stab wound injuries to the complainant, and one stab wound injury to one Tushar, which are grievous in nature.

9. He has also placed on record a custody certificate qua the petitioner, which is taken on record, and a perusal of the same reveals that the petitioner has suffered incarceration of 04 months and 29 days as on today, and he is not involved in any other criminal case.

10. He also submits, on instructions imparted to him by ASI Ankit, that challan was presented way back on dated 04.11.2023, and the charges have been framed by the learned trial Court concerned, and further, out of the total 12 prosecution witnesses, none has been examined till date.

ANALYSIS

11. “Bail is the Rule and Jail is an Exception”. This basic principle of criminal jurisprudence was laid down by the Hon’ble

Supreme Court, way back in 1978, in its landmark judgment titled “State of Rajasthan V. Balchand alias Baliay”, 1977 AIR 2447, 1978 SCR (1) 535. This principle finds its roots in one of the most distinguished fundamental rights, as enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution of India. Though the underlying objective behind detention of a person is to ensure easy availability of an accused for trial, without any inconvenience, however, in case the presence of an accused can be secured otherwise, then detention is not compulsory.

12. The right to a speedy trial is one of the rights of a detained person. However, while deciding application for regular bail, the Courts shall also take into consideration the fundamental precept of criminal jurisprudence, which is “the presumption of innocence”, besides the gravity of offence(s) involved.

13. In “Nikesh Tarachand Shah V. Union of India”, (2018) 11 SCC 1, the Hon’ble Supreme Court has recorded the following:-

“14. In Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia v. State of Punjab, (1980) 2 SCC 565 at 586-588, the purpose of granting bail is set out with great felicity as follows:-

“27. It is not necessary to refer to decisions which deal with the right to ordinary bail because that right does not furnish an exact parallel to the right to anticipatory bail. It is, however, interesting that as long back as in 1924 it was held by the High Court of Calcutta in Nagendra v. King-Emperor the object of bail is to secure the attendance of the accused at the trial, that the proper test to be applied in the solution of the question whether bail should be granted or refused is whether it is probable that the party will appear to take his trial and that it is indisputable that bail is not to be withheld as a punishment. In two other cases which, significantly, are the 'Meerut Conspiracy cases' observations are to be found regarding the right to bail which deserve a special mention. In K.N. Joglekar v. Emperor [AIR 1931 All 504 : 33 Cri LJ 94] it was observed, while dealing with Section 498 which corresponds to the present Section 439 of the Code, that it conferred upon the Sessions Judge or the High Court wide powers to grant bail which were not handicapped by the restrictions in the preceding Section 497 which corresponds to the present Section 437. It was observed by the court that there was no hard and fast rule and no inflexible principle governing the exercise of the discretion conferred by Section 498 and that the only principle which was established was that the discretion should be exercised judiciously. In Emperor v. Hutchinson [AIR 1931 All 356, 358 : 32 Cri LJ 1271] it was said that it was very unwise to make an attempt to lay down any particular rules which will bind the High Court, having regard to the fact that the legislature itself left the discretion of the court unfettered. According to the High Court, the variety of cases that may arise from time to time cannot be safely classified and it is dangerous to make an attempt to classify the cases and to say that in particular classes a bail may be granted but not in other classes. It was observed that the principle to be deduced from the various sections in the Criminal Procedure Code was that grant of bail is the rule and refusal is the exception. An accused person who enjoys freedom is in a much better position to look after his case and to properly defend himself than if he were in custody. As a presumably innocent person he is therefore entitled to freedom and every opportunity to look after his own case. A presumably innocent person must have his freedom to enable him to establish his innocence.

28. Coming nearer home, it was observed by Krishna Iyer, J., in Gudikanti Narasimhulu v. Public Prosecutor [(1978) 1 SCC 240 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 115] that: (SCC p. 242, para 1)

“... the issue of bail is one of liberty, justice, public safety and burden of the public treasury, all of which insist that a developed jurisprudence of bail is integral to a socially sensitized judicial process. . . . After all, personal liberty of an accused or convict is fundamental, suffering lawful eclipse only in terms of procedure established by law. The last four words of Article 21 are the life of that human right.”

29. In Gurcharan Singh v. State (Delhi Administration) [(1978) 1 SCC 118 : 1978 SCC (Cri) 41] it was observed by Goswami, J., who spoke for the court, that: (SCC p. 129, para 29)

“There cannot be an inexorable formula in the matter of granting bail. The facts and circumstances of each case will govern the exercise of judicial discretion in granting or cancelling bail.”

30. In AMERICAN JURISPRUDENCE (2d, Volume 8, p. 806, para 39), it is stated:

“Where the granting of bail lies within the discretion of the court, the granting or denial is regulated, to a large extent, by the facts and circumstances of each particular case. Since the object of the detention or imprisonment of the accused is to secure his appearance and submission to the jurisdiction and the judgment of the court, the primary inquiry is whether a recognizance or bond would effect that end.”

It is thus clear that the question whether to grant bail or not depends for its answer upon a variety of circumstances, the cumulative effect of which must enter into the judicial verdict. Any one single circumstance cannot be treated as of universal validity or as necessarily justifying the grant or refusal of bail.”

14. Also, in Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre v. State of Maharashtra, Criminal Appeal No.2271 of 2010, the Hon’ble Supreme Court has insisted upon striking a perfect balance of sanctity of an individual’s liberty as well as the interest of the society, in grant or refusing bail. The relevant extract of the judgment (supra) is reproduced hereinafter:-

3. The society has a vital interest in grant or refusal of bail because every criminal offence is the offence against the State. The order granting or refusing bail must reflect perfect balance between the conflicting interests, namely, sanctity of individual liberty and the interest of the society. The law of bails dovetails two conflicting interests namely, on the one hand, the requirements of shielding the society from the hazards of those committing crimes and potentiality of repeating the same crime while on bail and on the other hand absolute adherence of the fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence regarding presumption of innocence of an accused until he is found guilty and the sanctity of individual liberty.

15. This Court has examined the instant petition on the touchstone of the hereinabove extracted settled and legal principle(s) of law and is of the considered opinion that the instant petition is amenable for being allowed.

FINAL ORDER

16. Be that as it may be, considering the fact that the offences mentioned in the instant FIR, is triable by a magistrate, and all other co-accused have been granted the concession of regular bail, and the petitioner has suffered incarceration of 04 months and 29 days as on today, the challan was presented way back on 04.11.2023, and there are total 12 prosecution witnesses cited by the prosecution, none has been examined till date, this Court deems it appropriate to grant the concession of regular bail to the petitioner, during the pendency of trial. Therefore, without commenting upon the merits and circumstances of the present case, the present petition is allowed. The petitioner is ordered to be released on bail, on furnishing of bail bond and surety bond to the satisfaction of concerned Chief Judicial Magistrate/trial Court/Duty Magistrate.

17. However, it is clarified that if in future, the petitioner is found indulging in commission of similar offences, as are involved herein, the respondent-State shall be at liberty to make an appropriate application seeking cancellation of regular bail, as granted by this Court.

Moreover, anything observed here-in-above shall have no effect on the merits of the trial and is meant for deciding the present petition only.
