the anti-social elements against the SC/ST people and to make necessary amendment in the SC/AT(PoA) Act, 2015. The first respondent had passed the impugned order rejecting the permission to conduct demonstration stating the reason that the proposed venue is a busy area and it would likely cause disruptions to the traffic and public movement. Though the first respondent-Police refused to grant permission to conduct the demonstration/protest, it is the duty of the respondent-Police to identify or accommodate alternative place to conduct meeting/procession/demonstration/protest as the case may be, to the political organisation or voluntary organisation. Either Police or the Government cannot totally refuse or prevent the person/organisation to conduct either meeting /procession /protest/ demonstration.

4. The impugned order passed by the first respondent-Police is quashed. The respondent-Police is directed to identify the alternative place and give intimation to the petitioner.
