Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Union of India vs. Jaipal Singh¹, wherein the respondent, was accorded back wages from the date he was acquitted by the appellate Court for offence under Section 302 IPC, till reinstatement by the High Court as also in Raj Narain vs. Union of India², wherein the appellant, who was acquitted of the offences under Sections 409, 467 and 420 IPC by the High Court was also held entitled to back wages from the date of acquittal.

4. The parapet of justice, dictates that upon exoneration, reinstatement along with all attendant entitlements, is not merely a matter of equity but an inexorable necessity, as though the adverse order stemming from the criminal proceedings had never existed. Acquittal mandates restitutio in integrum, for any denial of remuneration would be repugnant to the cardinal principles of fairness and natural justice. The impugned order, bereft of any cogent reasons for withholding such benefits, stands wholly untenable in the face of settled jurisprudence.

5. On an overall circumspection, the impugned order dated 16.03.2020, Annexure P-9 deserves to be and is hereby set aside. As a sequitur thereto, the petitioner is held entitled full salary from the date of his acquittal till his reinstatement. Needful be done within a period of two months.

6. Disposed of accordingly.
