NARESH ALIAS BITTU

.. Petitioner

Vs.

STATE OF HARYANA

..Respondent

CORAM: HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE SUMEET GOEL

Present: Ms. Suman Beniwal, Advocate for the petitioner.

SUMEET GOEL, J. (Oral)

The instant petition is not maintainable under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., 1973 as per the judgment rendered by this Court titled 'Abhishek Jain Vs. State of U.T. Chandigarh and another' (CRM-M-31808-2024) 2024PHHC085784, However, keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case, it is deemed expedient that the instant petition is directed to be considered as a petition under Section 528 of Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023.

Ordered accordingly.

1. The present petition has been filed for quashing of the order dated 02.01.2025 (Annexure P-3) passed by learned Sessions Judge, Fatehabad whereby the exemption application filed by the petitioner was dismissed and he was ordered to be summoned through non-bailable warrants and further prayed for quashing of the order dated 03.02.2025 (Annexure P-4) whereby fresh arrest warrant was issued against the petitioner and fresh notice to his surety Vinod Kumar was also issued under Section 446 of Cr.P.C. in FIR No.431 dated 17.12.2002 registered under Sections 323, 34, 379-B, 427-B of IPC at Police Station Bhuna, District Fatehabad.

2. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that the petitioner had earlier been granted the concession of regular bail by this Court and since then he was regularly appearing before the trial Court. Learned counsel has submitted that the petitioner could appear before the trial Court on 02.01.2025 as he had to go outside the State of Punjab in his relations for some urgent work and accordingly filed the application(s) seeking exemption from personal appearance. However, the trial Court had declined the said exemption application(s) of the petitioner and summoned him through non-bailable warrants of arrest for 03.02.2025. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further argued that on 03.02.2025, the petitioner again could not appear before the trial Court as he was not intimated about the dismissal of his exemption application and the next date of hearing by his counsel representing him before the trial Court. Learned counsel has iterated that the non-appearance of the petitioner cannot be necessarily construed as a deliberate and willful absence. Learned counsel has contended that the procedure adopted by the learned trial Court in directly issuing the non-bailable warrants against the petitioner at the very first instance is contrary to the settled principles of criminal jurisprudence. It is well established position of law, as reiterated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, that the Courts are required to adhere to due process while ensuring the presence of the accused. It has been submitted by the learned counsel that in the instant case, the learned trial Court has failed to issue any notice to the petitioner prior to resorting to the issuance of non-bailable warrants and hence such an approach is arbitrary, untenable and contrary to the procedural safeguard enshrined under the law. Learned counsel has further iterated that the petitioner unequivocally undertake to enter appearance before the trial Court as also join the proceedings in accordance with law, the petitioner shall appear before the trial Court on each and every date of hearing and also cooperate therein, in accordance with law for a expeditious culmination of the trial.

3. Notice of motion.

4. Mr. Apoorv Garg, Sr. DAG, Haryana, who is present in Court, accepts notice on behalf of the official respondent-State of Haryana. He has opposed the petition in hand by arguing that the allegations against the petitioner are serious in nature, the petitioner has misused the concession of bail earlier extended to him by not appearing before the trial Court; no plausible explanation has been brought forth as to why the petitioner did not appear before the trial Court on the aforesaid date.

5. I have heard learned counsel for the rival parties and have perused the available record.

6. At this juncture, it would be apposite to refer herein to a judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court titled as Gudikanti Narasimhulu and others vs. Public Prosecutor, High Court of Andhra Pradesh AIR 1978 SUPREME COURT 429, relevant whereof reads as under:

“10. The significance and sweep of Article 21 make the deprivation of liberty a matter of grave concern and permissible only when the law authorising it is reasonable, even-handed and geared to the goals of community good and State necessity spelt out in Article 19. Indeed, the considerations I have set out as criteria are germane to the constitutional proposition I have deduced. Reasonableness postulates intelligent care and predicates that deprivation of freedom- by refusal of bail is not for punitive purpose but for the bi-focal interests of justice-to the individual involved and society affected.

11. We must weigh the contrary factors to answer the test of reasonableness, subject to the need for securing the presence, of the bail applicant. It makes sense to assume that a man on bail has a better chance to prepare or present his case than one remanded in custody. And if public justice is to be promoted, mechanical detention should be close to ours, the function of bail is limited, 'community roots'; of the, applicant are stressed and, after the Vera Foundation's Manhattan Bail Project, monetary suretyship is losing ground. The considerable public expense in keeping in custody where no danger of disappearance or disturbance can arise, is not a negligible consideration. Equally important is the deplorable condition, verging on. the inhuman, of our sub-jails, that the unrewarding cruelty and expensive custody of avoidable incarceration makes refusal of bail unreasonable and a Policy favouring release justly sensible.

12. A few other weighty factors deserve reference. All deprivation of liberty is validated by social defence and individual correction along an anti-criminal direction. Public justice is central to the whole scheme of bail law. Fleeing justice must be forbidden but punitive harshness should be minimised. Restorative devices to redeem the man, even, through community service, meditative drill, study classes or other resources should be innovated, and playing foul with public peace by tampering with evidence, intimidating witnesses or committing offence while on judicially sanctioned 'free enterprise,' should be provided against. No seeker of justice shall play confidence tricks on the court or community. Thus, conditions may be hung around bail orders, not to cripple but to protect. Such is the holistic jurisdiction and humanistic orientation invoked by the judicial discretion correlated to the values of our constitution."

6.1. Further, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in a judgment titled as Gurcharan Singh vs. State (UT of Delhi) 1978 (1) SCC 118, has held as under:-

"Where the granting of bail lies within the discretion of the court, the granting or denial is regulated, to a large extent, by the facts and circumstances of each particular case. Since the object of the detention or imprisonment of the accused is to secure his appearance and submission to the jurisdiction and the judgment of the court, the primary inquiry is whether a recognizance or bond would effect that end."

6.2. Furthermore, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in a judgment titled as Sanjay Chandra vs. CBI (2012) 1 SCC 40, has held as under:

"21. In bail applications, generally, it has been laid down from the earliest times that the object of bail is to secure the appearance of the accused person at his trial by reasonable amount of bail. The object of bail is neither punitive nor preventative. Deprivation of liberty must be considered a punishment, unless it can be required to ensure that an accused person will stand his trial when called upon. The courts owe more than verbal respect to the principle that punishment begins after conviction, and that every man is deemed to be innocent until duly tried and duly found guilty.

22. From the earliest times, it was appreciated that detention in custody pending completion of trial could be a cause of great hardship. From time to time, necessity demands that some un-convicted persons should be held in custody pending trial to secure their attendance at the trial but in such cases, "necessity" is the operative test. In this country, it would be quite contrary to the concept of personal liberty enshrined in the Constitution that any person should be punished in respect of any matter, upon which, he has not been convicted or that in any circumstances, he should be deprived of his liberty upon only the belief that he will tamper with the witnesses if left at liberty, save in the most extraordinary circumstances.”

CRM-M-7769-2025 (O&M)

7. A perusal of the record reveals that an application for exemption from personal appearance was filed on behalf of the petitioner. However, the learned trial Court, while rejecting the said application, straight away proceeded to issue non-bailable warrants against the petitioner. In the considered opinion of this Court, the rejection of the application in hand amounts to an unjustifiable restriction on the procedural rights of the petitioner in the absence of any misconduct, lack of bona fides, or a deliberate attempt to evade the proceedings on his behalf. The issuance of non-bailable warrants must not be exercised in a mechanical manner and the same must be adopted sparingly and only upon the recording of cogent reasons reflecting the necessity of adopting such a stringent course.

8. Keeping in view the entirety of the facts and circumstances of the case; especially the factum of the prime object of cancellation of bail and forfeiture of bail bonds being securing the presence of the accused, the petitioner-accused having come forward himself to face trial, willingness shown by the petitioner-accused to appear before the trial Court on each and every date in accordance with law, the petitioner having submitted that he shall cooperate for an expeditious culmination of the trial; there being no tangible material brought forward to indicate the likelihood of the petitioner to interfere with the prosecution evidence; this Court is the considered opinion that the petition in hand deserves to be allowed.

9. It is, thus, directed as follows:

CRM-M-7769-2025 (O&M)

- (i) The impugned order dated 02.01.2025 (Annexure P-3) as also order dated 03.02.2025 (Annexure P-4) passed by the learned Sessions Judge, Fatehabad are set-aside subject to the petitioner appearing before the trial/concerned Court on or before 10.03.2025 i.e. the next date of hearing fixed in the said Court and his furnishing an undertaking that he shall continue to appear before the trial/concerned Court on each and every date of hearing.
