3 Accordingly, the delay is condoned. The Applications stand disposed of.

CM Appl.51276/2024/Seeking impleadment/

4. This is an Application filed on behalf of the Petitioner seeking impleadment of the legal heirs of the Petitioner.

5. Learned Counsel for the parties submit that the legal heirs of the Petitioner have already been impleaded before the learned Trial Court and thus, the present Application has become infructuous.

6. Accordingly, the Application stands disposed of.

C.R.P. 214/2022

7. The present Petition has been filed on behalf of the Petitioner under Section 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 [hereinafter referred to as “CPC”] against the order dated 21.09.2022 passed by learned ADJ-02, South District, Saket Courts, New Delhi [hereinafter referred to as “Impugned Order”].

8. By the Impugned Order, two Applications were decided by the learned Trial Court. One under Section 151 CPC seeking recall of the Order dated 14.08.2020. The second Application was filed under Order VI Rule 16 CPC. While the Order allowed the first Application for recall, the Application under Order VI Rule 16 was dismissed by the learned Trial Court and the matter was listed for evidence before the learned Trial Court.

9. Concededly, the Impugned Order that is the subject matter of challenge is not a final Order or an Order disposing of a Petition finally.

10. It is no longer res integra that the provisions of Section 115 of the CPC cannot be invoked except where an order, if made in favour of the revisionist, would have finally disposed of the suit or proceedings. This is set out in the proviso to Section 115 of the CPC below:

“Section 115 – Revision

The High Court may call for the record of any case which has been decided by any Court subordinate to such High Court and in which no appeal lies thereto, and if such subordinate Court appears

(a) to have exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, or

(b) to have failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or

(c) to have acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity, the High Court may make such order in the case as it thinks fit:

Provided that the High Court shall not, under this section, vary or reverse any order made, or any order deciding an issue, in the course of a suit or other proceeding, except where the order, if it had been made in favour of the party applying for revision would have finally disposed of the suit or other proceedings.

10.1 The Supreme Court in Shiv Shakti Coop. Housing Society, Nagpur v. Swaraj Developers & Ors.¹ has held that unless the order if given in favour of the party applying for the revision would have given finality to the suit or other proceeding, a revision is not maintainable. The relevant extract of the Shiv Shakti case is set out below:

“32. A plain reading of Section 115 as it stands makes it clear that the stress is on the question whether the order in favour of the party applying for revision would have given finality to suit or other proceeding. If the answer is “yes” then the revision is maintainable. But on the contrary, if the answer is “no” then the revision is not maintainable. Therefore, if the impugned order is interim in nature or does not finally decide the lis, the revision will not be maintainable. The legislative intent is crystal clear. Those orders, which are interim in nature, cannot be the subject-matter of revision under Section 115. There is marked distinction in the language of Section 97(3) of the Old Amendment Act and Section 32(2)(i) of the Amendment Act. While in the former, there was a clear legislative intent to save applications admitted or pending before the amendment came into force. Such an intent is significantly absent in Section 32(2)(i). The amendment relates to procedures. No person has a vested right in a course of procedure. He has only the right of proceeding in the manner prescribed. If by a statutory change the mode of procedure is altered, the parties are to proceed according to the altered mode, without exception, unless there is a different stipulation.”

10.2 In the case of *Gayatri Devi & Ors v. Shashi Pal Singh*², the Supreme Court while relying on the Shiv Shakti Coop. Housing Society case has held that an order interim in nature or which does not finally decide the lis, cannot be challenged by way of a revision under Section 115 CPC.

“14. In the first place, it appears to us that the revision petition before the High Court was wholly incompetent in view of the amended provision of Section 115 CPC. The revision petition was entertained at the stage of interlocutory proceedings. As laid down by this Court in Shiv Shakti Coop. Housing Society v. Swaraj Developers [(2003) 6 SCC 659] an order interim in nature or which does not finally decide the lis, cannot be challenged by way of a revision under Section 115 CPC.”

11. Thus, the Impugned Order is not an order which is amenable to challenge under Section 115 of the CPC.

12. After some arguments, learned Counsel for the Petitioner seeks and is granted permission to withdraw the present Petition with liberty to agitate all contentions before the appropriate forum.

13. The present Petition is accordingly dismissed as withdrawn with the liberty as prayed for, albeit in accordance with law. The pending Application also stands closed.

13.1 It is clarified that this Court has not examined the matter on merits and the rights and contentions of both the parties are left open to be agitated before the learned Trial Court.

14. The parties shall act based on the digitally signed copy of the order.
