ORDER

It is seen from the records that the present case involves a Non-Bailable Warrant (NBW). However, it pertains to a commercial quantity.

2. The learned Additional Public Prosecutor appearing for the respondent police vehemently objected to the consideration of the anticipatory bail application, on the ground that the co-accused has already been convicted. The petitioner, who is A-2, was also in possession at the time of the occurrence and was arrayed as an accused on the basis of such possession. Therefore, at this stage, the petition seeking anticipatory bail cannot be considered.
