Mr. Sakal Sikri, Advocate for respondent Nos.1 to 4.

Mr. Adhiraj Singh, AAG, Punjab.

SUMEET GOEL, J. (Oral)

CRM-19101-2016

1. The present application has been filed on behalf of the applicant-petitioner seeking condonation of delay of 265 days in filing the accompanying revision petition. The main revision petition has been filed impugning the judgment dated 21.05.2015, passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Ludhiana dismissing the appeal preferred by the State of Punjab, acquitting the respondents from the charges while upholding the judgment/order dated 19.03.2014 passed by Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Samrala. The applicant-petitioners, by way of instant revision petition, impugns the abovesaid judgments.

2. Learned counsel appearing for the applicant-petitioner, while seeking grant of prayer for condonation of delay of 265 days, has argued that the applicant-petitioners had engaged the counsel in the last week of August, 2015. However, due to an inadvertent and bona fide error, the brief was misplaced in the house of the counsel who had shifted to his newly constructed house, which resulted in the delay in filing the present revision petition. The delay was neither intentional nor deliberate. The applicant-petitioners have now been able to reconstruct the trial court record, and consequently, the present revision petition has been filed without any further delay. It has been further contended that no prejudice is going to be caused to the respondents in case the instant application is allowed and the instant revision petition is heard on merits. Learned counsel for the applicant-petitioners has further argued that the circumstances of the case indicate that the delay in filing the revision petition is neither intentional nor deliberate & hence delay deserves to be condoned.

3. Learned counsel appearing for the private respondents has argued that there is inordinate delay in filing the revision petition and the applicant/petitioners have failed to satisfactorily explain the same and, thus, prayed for dismissal of the application as also for revision.

4. I have heard the learned counsel for the rival parties and have perused the paper-book.

5. It would be apposite to refer herein to a judgment of this Court passed in CRR(F)-1844-2023 titled as Deepak vs. Noori and another, decided on 29.02.2024; relevant whereof reads as under:-

“8. As a sequel to above-said discussion, the following principles of law emerge:

- I. A liberal approach, undoubtedly, ought to be accorded to a plea for condonation of delay made under Section 5 of The Limitation Act, 1963 so as to further the cause of substantial justice. The concept of substantial justice essentially includes in itself the desirability of adjudication of a claim of the litigant on merits thereof rather than rejection of the same, at the threshold, on account of being barred by limitation. However, adoption of such liberal approach cannot be stretched to mean that a prayer (for condonation of delay) ought to be granted sans reasonable explanation therefor. An applicant (seeking condonation of delay) has to bring forward cogent, credible and lucid reason(s) to substantiate such a plea. In case such reason(s) is not scrutable, a Court would well be within its discretion to decline such plea (for condonation of delay). In other words, inexplicable delay ought not to be condoned.
- II. A Court ought to grant an application seeking condonation of delay when no negligence, inaction or want of bona fide is imputable to such applicant and/or such delay has occurred on account of circumstances beyond reasonable control of such applicant.
- III. It is not the length of delay (sought to be condoned) but explanation thereof which is relevant for consideration by a Court.
- IV. Law of limitation does not require an applicant (seeking condonation of delay) to furnish an exhaustive explanation on ‘day to-day basis’ for such delay. A Court while dealing with a plea for condonation of delay need not undertake such a pedantic approach.
- V. In appropriate cases, a Court may consider imposing costs while granting an application for condonation of delay. However, the quantification of costs so imposed, must reflect the same being commensurate to the lis in issue as also attending circumstances therein.
- VI. The factum; of non-applicant(s) or even strangers having altered their position(s) relying upon the applicant not having filed an appeal/revision etc. within stipulated time and resultant effects thereof; will indubitably be a pertinent factor for consideration of a plea for condonation of delay.
- VII. A plea for condonation of delay by the State as also its instrumentalities has to be accorded a more liberal approach since the machinery involved in their working is impersonal in nature & hidden factors working therein cannot be given a complete amiss.
- VIII. The discretion of a Court, while considering a plea for condonation of delay, will be exercised in view of peculiar facts/circumstances of an individual case. It is neither prudent nor feasible to fix any exhaustive guidelines for exercising such judicial discretion. On the contrary, it would be perilous to lay down such general criteria for governing such discretion. Needless to emphasize that exercise of such judicial discretion/power ought to be within the four corners of well settled principles of justice, good conscience and fair play.”

6. More recently the Hon’ble Supreme Court in case titled as Pathapati Subba Reddy (Died) by L.Rs & Ors. vs. The Special Deputy Collector (LA), Neutral Citation:2024 INSC 286, has observed as under:

“26. On a harmonious consideration of the provisions of the law, as aforesaid, and the law laid down by this Court, it is evident that:

xxx xxx xxx xxx

vii) Merits of the case are not required to be considered in condoning the delay; and

(viii) Delay condonation application has to be decided on the parameters laid down for condoning the delay and condoning the delay for the reason that the conditions have been imposed, tantamounts to disregarding the statutory provision.”

7. More recently the Hon’ble Supreme Court in case titled as Shivamma (Dead) by L.Rs. vs. Karnataka Housing Board and others, Neutral Citation:2025 INSC 1104, has observed as under:

“171. The next submission that was advanced on behalf of the respondents herein is that, in matters pertaining to condonation of delay, a certain degree of leeway ought to be accorded to the Government and Public Authorities owing to the innate complexities in the way the State apparatus functions. The argument is that due to the inherent bureaucracy and involvement of various departments of different hierarchy which are endemic to the functioning of the State and its instrumentalities, unavoidable delays tend to crop up even without any deliberate intention, and thus, the courts ought to be pragmatic and liberal where the State or any of its instrumentalities is seeking condonation of delay in the filing of the appeal or application, as the case may be. In this regard, reliance was placed on the decision of this Court in G. Ramegowda, Major & Ors. v. Special Land Acquisition Officer, Bangalore reported in (1988) 2 SCC 142.”

212. The law as it presently stands, post the decision of Postmaster General (supra), is unambiguous and clear. Condonation of delay is to remain an exception, not the rule. Governmental litigants, no less than private parties, must demonstrate bona fide, sufficient, and cogent cause for delay. Absent such justification, delay cannot be condoned merely on the ground of the identity of the applicant.

218. However, equally important to note is that wherever, any explanation is sought to be given on account of bureaucratic lethargy and inherent complexities of governmental decision-making, the same more often than not would invariably always is an “excuse”, as experience has shown us, depicted from a long line of decisions of this Court. It is at this stage, where the decision of Postmaster General (supra) assumes significance. It seeks to convey the messages, that court should not be agnostic, to how the State or its instrumentalities, often tend to take the recourse of condonation of delay in a casual manner.”

8. Condonation of delay of 265 days in filing the accompanying revision petition is sought for on the following relevant averments:

- “1. That the present application is part and parcel of the accompanying revision petition and therefore the contents of the same are not repeated herein for sake of brevity but the applicant crave the leave of this hon'ble court to rely upon the contents of accompanying petition in support of present application.
- 2. That the above titled revision petition was required to be filed on or before 30/08/2015. The applicant/petitioner had engaged the counsel in the last week of August, 2015. After this when the revision petition was drafted then the brief was misplaced in the office of the counsel because the counsel had shifted the office to his newly construed house because entire furniture, Almeria were shifted. The council had also mistaken that he had handed over the same brief his clerk for filing, now the clerk of the counsel traced the brief and immediately the revision petition being filed today. But delay has caused in filing the present revision petition.
- 3. That the said delay is neither intentional nor deliberate, but due to facts mentioned in preceding paras.”

9. A perusal of the above-said averments clearly show that no reasonable or plausible explanation has been furnished by the applicant-petitioner to condone the delay of 265 days in filing the accompanying revision petition. This application, apart from bereft of any specific details/particulars which may reflect bona fide on part of the applicant-petitioners in pursuing their case, rather reflects a deliberate attempt on part of the applicant-petitioners to somehow entangle the respondents-accused in prolonged litigation. The applicant-petitioners have failed to provide any concrete explanation or document to demonstrate his genuine efforts in pursuing the matter within the prescribed time limit. No cause much less sufficient cause, as required in law, has been shown to justify or condone the significant delay of 265 days in filing the accompanying revision petition. The delay is both inordinate and inexplicable. Merely attributing the delay to unforeseen circumstances, without any supporting details or evidence to substantiate these claims, does not meet the legal threshold for condonation. The applicant-petitioners have neither shown continuous interest in the case nor presented any exceptional or unavoidable circumstances that could explain such an extensive delay.

9.1 The explanation for the delay contained in the application seeking condonation of delay is wholly unsatisfactory and can hardly be said to be a reasonable, satisfactory or even a proper explanation for seeking condonation of delay. In the facts and circumstances of the case as narrated hereinabove, the application seeking condonation of delay of 265 days in filing the accompanying revision petition merits dismissal.

Decision

10. The application (CRM-19101-2016) seeking condonation of delay of 265 days in filing the accompanying revision petition is dismissed. Since the application seeking condonation of delay has been dismissed, the main revision petition stands dismissed as well accordingly.
11. Pending application(s), if any, shall also stand disposed off.
