ORDER

% 28.01.2026

1. The present petitions under Section 528 of Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 ["BNSS"] (corresponding to Section 482 of Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 ["CrPC"]) seek quashing of two FIRs, being FIR No. 520/2021 [subject matter of CRL.M.C. 714/2026] and FIR No. 293/2022 [subject matter of CRL.M.C. 703/2026]. Both FIRs were registered at Police Station Fatehpur Beri, New Delhi. FIR No. 520/2021 dated 09.12.2021 is registered under Sections 325/34 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 ["IPC"], and FIR No. 293/2022 under Sections 498A/406/34 of the IPC. The petitions are founded on a settlement arrived at between the parties.

2. Issue notice. Ms. Manjeet Arya, learned Additional Public Prosecutor, accepts notice on behalf of the State. Mr. Jagdish Kumar Verma, learned counsel, accepts notice on behalf of respondent No. 2.

3. Both FIRs have been instituted on the complaint of respondent No. 2. FIR No. 520/2021 has been registered against the husband and father-in-law of the complainant, where she alleges that they assaulted her. Whereas FIR 493/2022 has been registered upon filing a complaint before the Crime against Women Cell, against the husband, his parents and his sister.

4. Petitioner No. 1 and respondent No. 2 were married on 16.02.2013, but have been living separately since 21.11.2021. Out of the said wedlock, one child was born on 12.01.2015.

5. During the pendency of the proceedings, the parties have entered into a settlement, recorded in a Settlement Report dated 10.10.2025, under the aegis of the Mediation Centre, Saket Courts.

6. The settlement contemplates that the respondent No. 2 and her husband have reconciled and wish to resume their marital life. They, alongwith their child, will shift to a rented accommodation with effect from 01.11.2025, and live separately from her parents-in-law. The settlement also contemplates a payment of Rs.11,00,000/- in three instalments by the father-in-law to respondent No.2/complainant.

7. In light of the aforesaid, parties seek quashing of the impugned FIRs.

8. The petitioners are present, and are identified by learned counsel and the Investigating Officer [“IO”]. Respondent No. 2 is also present in person and is identified by her learned counsel and IO.

9. The Supreme Court has clearly held that, in certain circumstances, the High Courts, in exercise of their powers under Section 528 of BNSS (corresponding to Section 482 of CrPC), can quash criminal proceedings, even with respect to non-compoundable offences, on the ground that there is a compromise between the accused and the complainant, especially when no overarching public interest is adversely affected.

10. The Supreme Court, in *Gian Singh v. State of Punjab & Anr.*¹ has held as follows:

“58. Where the High Court quashes a criminal proceeding having regard to the fact that the dispute between the offender and the victim has been settled although the offences are not compoundable, it does so as in its opinion, continuation of criminal proceedings will be an exercise in futility and justice in the case demands that the dispute between the parties is put to an end and peace is restored; securing the ends of justice being the ultimate guiding factor. No doubt, crimes are acts which have harmful effect on the public and consist in wrongdoing that seriously endangers and threatens the well-being of the society and it is not safe to leave the crime-doer only because he and the victim have settled the dispute amicably or that the victim has been paid compensation, yet certain crimes have been made compoundable in law, with or without the permission of the court. In respect of serious offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc., or other offences of mental depravity under IPC or offences of moral turpitude under special statutes, like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity, the settlement between the offender and the victim can have no legal sanction at all. However, certain offences which overwhelmingly and predominantly bear civil flavour having arisen out of civil, mercantile, commercial, financial, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony, particularly relating to dowry, etc. or the family dispute, where the wrong is basically to the victim and the offender and the victim have settled all disputes between them amicably, irrespective of the fact that such offences have not been made compoundable, the High Court may within the framework of its inherent power, quash the criminal proceeding or criminal complaint or FIR if it is satisfied that on the face of such settlement, there is hardly any likelihood of the offender being convicted and by not quashing the criminal proceedings, justice shall be casualty and ends of justice shall be defeated. The above list is illustrative and not exhaustive. Each case will depend on its own facts and no hard-and-fast category can be prescribed.”²

Further, in *Narinder Singh & Ors. v. State of Punjab & Anr.*³, the Supreme Court has also laid down guidelines for High Courts while accepting settlement deeds between parties and quashing the proceedings. The relevant observations in the said decision read as under:

“29. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we sum up and lay down the following principles by which the High Court would be guided in giving adequate treatment to the settlement between the parties and exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code while accepting the settlement and quashing the proceedings or refusing to accept the settlement with direction to continue with the criminal proceedings:

29.1. Power conferred under Section 482 of the Code is to be distinguished from the power which lies in the Court to compound the offences under Section 320 of the Code. No doubt, under Section 482 of the Code, the High Court has inherent power to quash the criminal proceedings even in those cases which are not compoundable, where the parties have settled the matter between themselves. However, this power is to be exercised sparingly and with caution.

29.2. When the parties have reached the settlement and on that basis petition for quashing the criminal proceedings is filed, the guiding factor in such cases would be to secure:

(i) ends of justice, or

(ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any court.

While exercising the power the High Court is to form an opinion on either of the aforesaid two objectives.

29.3. Such a power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involve heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, for the offences alleged to have been committed under special statute like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender.

29.4. On the other hand, those criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominantly civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes should be quashed when the parties have resolved their entire disputes among themselves.

29.5. While exercising its powers, the High Court is to examine as to whether the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal cases would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal cases.”⁴

11. In the present case, the proceedings between the parties arise out of a matrimonial relationship. The parties since reconciled, and respondent No. 2 and her husband are living together since the last few months. Continuation of criminal proceedings would be an impediment to the peaceful resumption of their domestic life and would also be to the detriment of their minor child. Applying the tests laid down by the Supreme Court, it may be observed that the respondent No. 2 has also categorically affirmed the voluntary nature of the settlement before the Court. In these circumstances, the criminal proceedings are unlikely to result in conviction, and its continuation would be an empty formality, adding to the burden of the justice system and consuming public resources unnecessarily.

12. The settlement contemplates payment of a sum of Rs. 11,00,000/- to respondent No. 2, who states that Rs. 9,00,000/- has already been received by her. The remaining amount of Rs. 2,00,000/- has been handed over in Court today. There is therefore no impediment to the grant of the relief sought.

13. Having regard to the above discussion, the petitions are allowed, and proceedings arising out of FIR No. 520/2021 registered under Sections 325/34 of the IPC and FIR No. 293/2022 registered under Sections 498A/406/34 of the IPC at Police Station Fatehpur Beri, New Delhi, are hereby quashed.

14. The petition stands disposed of.

15. It is, however, made clear that the settlement and the present order will not, in any way, affect the rights of the minor child.
