1. The petitioners have pointed out certain facts to indicate that the pending applications require urgent consideration by the National Company

Law Appellate Tribunal [NCLAT]. It, however, is submitted that since there is a batch matter and on account of multiple parties, the applications of the petitioners are being taken for consideration. The Court finds that there is no application filed before the concerned NCLAT making such a request either for expeditious disposal of the pending applications or for keeping the applications out of the batch and to hear them separately.

2. The Court, thus, grants liberty to the petitioners to file a separate application with the specific prayer of expeditious disposal or for keeping the applications for hearing on a separate date.

3. There is no reason to believe that if such applications are filed by the petitioners, the same would not be considered expeditiously by the concerned NCLAT.

4. If the grievance of the petitioners is not mitigated within a reasonable period of time, the petitioners are at liberty to take further recourse in accordance with law.

5. With these observations, the petitions stand disposed of.
