

$~58

* IN THE HIGH COURT OF DELHI AT NEW DELHI

+ CRL.M.C. 5148/2025

MUKESH & ORS.

.....Petitioner

Through: Mr. Yogesh Kumar Gupta, Advocate with petitioners in person.

versus

STATE OF NCT OF DELHI & ANR.

.....Respondent

Through: Ms. Manjeet Arya, APP.
Mr. Samuel Masih with Mr. Aman, Advocates with R2/Complainant in person.

CORAM:

HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE PRATEEK JALAN

ORDER

% 25.03.2026

1. The petitioners have filed this petition under Section 528 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 ["BNSS"] (corresponding to Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 ["CrPC"]) seeking quashing of FIR No. 484/2022 dated 24.06.2022, registered at Police Station Nangloi, Outer District, New Delhi, under Sections 420/34 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 ["IPC"], and all proceedings emanating therefrom, on the ground of settlement.
2. The petition is taken up for disposal with the consent of learned counsel for the parties.
3. The impugned FIR came to be registered at the instance of respondent No. 2. The allegations, as emerging therefrom, are that on 24.06.2022, at about 10:30 AM, while respondent No. 2 was on his way to feed birds, a boy on a motorcycle approached him to enquire the way to the market. Shortly thereafter, another boy arrived and, while engaging him in conversation, they are alleged to have induced him to part with his chain and ring.

4. Upon completion of investigation, a chargesheet was filed under Sections 420/411/201/120B/34 of the IPC, naming seven accused persons [petitioners herein].

5. The parties have since entered into a settlement, as recorded in a Compromise Deed dated 21.05.2025. In light of the aforesaid, they seek quashing of the impugned FIR.

6. The petitioners are present in Court, and are identified by their learned counsel, as well as by the Investigating Officer. Respondent No. 2 is also present in person, and is identified by his learned counsel and the Investigating Officer.

7. The settlement records that the impugned FIR came to be registered on account of a misunderstanding, and that the parties have amicably resolved their disputes through the intervention of common relatives, friends, and well-wishers. It further provides that the petitioners shall pay a sum of Rs. 80,000/- to respondent No. 2 by way of compensation.

8. Respondent No. 2, who is present in person and represented by counsel, states that he has received the aforesaid amount today.

9. Learned counsel for the parties confirm that the settlement has been entered into voluntarily, and without any coercion or undue pressure.

10. Although the offences under Sections 201 and 120B of the IPC is non-compoundable, the Supreme Court has clearly held that, in certain circumstances, the High Courts, in exercise of their powers under Section 482 of the CrPC [corresponding to Section 528 of the BNSS], can quash criminal proceedings, even with respect to non-compoundable offences, on the ground that there is a compromise between the accused and the complainant, especially when no overarching public interest is adversely affected.

11. The Supreme Court, in Gian Singh v. State of Punjab and Anr. [(2012) 10 SCC 303], held as follows:

“58. Where the High Court quashes a criminal proceeding having regard to the fact that the dispute between the offender and the victim has been settled although the offences are not compoundable, it does so as in its opinion, continuation of criminal proceedings will be an exercise in futility and justice in the case demands that the dispute between the parties is put to an end and peace is restored; securing the ends of justice being the ultimate guiding factor. No doubt, crimes are acts which have harmful effect on the public and consist in wrongdoing that seriously endangers and threatens the well-being of the society and it is not safe to leave the crime-doer only because he and the victim have settled the dispute amicably or that the victim has been paid compensation, yet certain crimes have been made compoundable in law, with or without the permission of the court. In respect of serious offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc., or other offences of mental depravity under IPC or offences of moral turpitude under special statutes, like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity, the settlement between the offender and the victim can have no legal sanction at all. However, certain offences which overwhelmingly and predominantly bear civil flavour having arisen out of civil, mercantile, commercial, financial, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony, particularly relating to dowry, etc. or the family dispute, where the wrong is basically to the victim and the offender and the victim have settled all disputes between them amicably, irrespective of the fact that such offences have not been made compoundable, the High Court may within the framework of its inherent power, quash the criminal proceeding or criminal complaint or FIR if it is satisfied that on the face of such settlement, there is hardly any likelihood of the offender being convicted and by not quashing the criminal proceedings, justice shall be casualty and ends of justice shall be defeated. The above list is illustrative and not exhaustive. Each case will depend on its own facts and no hard-and-fast category can be prescribed.”

[Emphasis supplied.]

Further, in Narinder Singh and Ors. v. State of Punjab and Anr. [(2014) 6 SCC 466], the Supreme Court has also laid down guidelines for High Courts while accepting settlement deeds between parties and quashing the proceedings. The relevant observations in the said decision read as under:

“29. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we sum up and lay down the following principles by which the High Court would be guided in giving adequate treatment to the settlement between the parties and exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code while accepting the settlement and quashing the proceedings or refusing to accept the settlement with direction to continue with the criminal proceedings:

29.1. Power conferred under Section 482 of the Code is to be distinguished from the power which lies in the Court to compound the offences under Section 320 of the Code. No doubt, under Section 482 of the Code, the High Court has inherent power to quash the criminal proceedings even in those cases which are not compoundable, where the parties have settled the matter between themselves. However, this power is to be exercised sparingly and with caution.

29.2. When the parties have reached the settlement and on that basis petition for quashing the criminal proceedings is filed, the guiding factor in such cases would be to secure:

(i) ends of justice, or

(ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any court.

While exercising the power the High Court is to form an opinion on either of the aforesaid two objectives.

29.3. Such a power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involve heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, for the offences alleged to have been committed under special statute like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender.

29.4. On the other hand, those criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominantly civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes should be quashed when the parties have resolved their entire disputes among themselves.

29.5. While exercising its powers, the High Court is to examine as to whether the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal cases would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal cases.”

[Emphasis supplied.]

12. The offences alleged in the subject FIR arise out of a misunderstanding between the parties, which does not involve any element of public interest or heinous criminality. Applying the tests laid down by the Supreme Court, it may be noted that respondent No. 2 has also categorically affirmed the voluntary nature of the settlement before this Court. In these circumstances, the continuation of the criminal proceedings is unlikely to result in a conviction and would amount to a mere formality, thereby imposing an unnecessary burden on the justice system and consuming public resources.

13. As noted above, the settlement amount of Rs. 80,000/- has also been received by respondent No. 2. There is, therefore, no impediment to the grant of the relief sought.

14. Having regard to the above discussion, the petition is allowed, and FIR No. 484/2022 dated 24.06.2022, registered at Police Station Nangloi, Outer District, New Delhi, under Sections 420/34 of the IPC, alongwith all consequential proceedings arising therefrom, is hereby quashed.

15. The petition accordingly stands disposed of.

PRATEEK JALAN, J

MARCH 25, 2026

SV/KA/